

2 Appointed to Probe Charges Filed Against G.O.P. Nominee Attorney General Acts on Recommendation by Aids DISCUSS PLANS

Platteville and Madison Attorneys are Special Counsel

Madison —(P)—Attorneys Arthur W. Kopp of Platteville and William H. Spohn of Madison were appointed today by Attorney General Loomis as special counsel to investigate and conduct proceedings under the corrupt practices act against Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee, Republican nominee for governor.

Loomis acted on a recommendation made Saturday by Deputy Attorney General Leo Vaudreuil and Assistant Newell S. Boardman, with whom petitions against Heil were filed by John B. Chapple, Ashland editor and Edward G. Ihlenfeldt, West Allis.

Chapple lost the Republican nomination for the United States senate in the primary to Alexander Wiley of Chippewa Falls and is now running for that office as an independent.

Chapple charged that Heil and some of his supporters tried to "bribe" him with an offer of $2,600 for 26 speeches, to withdraw from the senatorial race. Ihlenfeldt claimed that campaign expenses of Heil exceeded the legal limit.

Chapple today amended his complaint by filing with the attorney general a four-page supplementary statement alleging the withdrawal of Robert K. Henry from the gubernatorial race after he had won the Democratic nomination.

Chapple said that Henry was part of a plot to put Henry up as the Republican candidate for United States senator in 1940.

The Ashland editor, who had already pointed himself for the 1940 senatorial nomination, charged that Heil had no intention of permitting him to take part in the present campaign, despite the $2,600 order on the "Heil for Governor club" which he turned over to the attorney general.

He said in his statement that a "verbal contract" to pay previous campaign expenses he had incurred was not fulfilled, and that there were no more to be sent him back to Ashland "broke" he could not build himself up for 1940.

Loomis said he expected Attorney Kopp and Spohn would meet within a few days to discuss plans for an action against Heil. The only penalty involved under the corrupt practices act is removal from office. Since the election will not be held until a week from tomorrow it was uncertain what course the action would take.

Loomis said that Kopp, who is a former president of the state bar association, is an independent Republican, and Spohn is an independent Democrat.

Better Business for Farm and Industry Seen in Coming Year

Washington —(P)—The bureau of agricultural economics predicted today business would be better for farmers and industrialists next year, but it said farm prices may not rise much.

The bureau, in an annual report on demand and prices for agricultural products, asserted general economic conditions in the United States "are mostly favorable to recovery." Even so, it added, prospects for next year are not quite so good as in 1937.

The bureau forecast that domestic demand for products of the farm probably would be greater and farmers would use a greater volume of short-term credit in 1939 than this year.

Cash farm income, the report added, should range next year between the $7,500,000,000 estimated for this year and the 1937 estimate of $8,600,000,000.

The bureau said an expected increase in consumer income should step up the demand for farm products and thus put more dollars into the farmers' pockets.

Panic Results When Men From Mars Attack U. S. in Radio Fiction; Hysteria Prevails Among Many Listeners; Inquiry Is Launched

Terror-Stricken People Flee From Large Cities

Washington —(P)—The federal communications commission began an investigation today of a dramatic radio broadcast which led some people to believe last night that men from Mars had attacked the United States.

Chairman Frank P. McNinch asked the Columbia Broadcasting system to furnish the commission with an electrical transcription of the broadcast, a dramatized version of H. G. Wells' imaginative story, "War of the Worlds." McNinch said:

"I withhold final judgment until later, but any broadcast that creates such general panic and fear as this one is reported to have done is, to say the least, regrettable."

New York —(P)—A horrible fantasy of war waged on the United States by fearsome, space-conquering men from Mars brought near panic to that part of the nation's radio audience last night.

In the double-quick tempo of the news broadcast, the fiction of a Columbia program became so realistic that hysteria prevailed among listeners throughout the United States and Canada.

Demands for investigation and correction came today with the belated reports of almost fantastic panic.

Senator Clyde L. Herring (D-Iowa) said he planned to introduce in congress a bill "controlling just such abuse as was heard over the radio last night."

City Manager Paul Morton of Trenton, N. J., near the locale of the fictional invasion, said he would demand investigation by the federal communications commission.

Some apartment houses in New York were emptied hurriedly by frantic listeners to the program—and by second and third hand accounts that multiplied the impending peril.

A woman in Pittsburgh tried suicide, saying "I'd rather die this way than like that."

At a high point in the program the electric power failed at Connecticut.

Robbery Suspect Is Under Arrest

Prisoner Confesses Part in Number of Wisconsin Bank Holdups

Chicago —(P)—George "Spike" Slade, 30, described by federal authorities as a member of the Edward Bentz bank robbery gang, was held here today pending removal to Pennsylvania.

Slade's arrest was announced last night by Daniel M. Ladd, head of the Chicago F. B. I. field office.

The prisoner, Ladd said, confessed participating in 12 bank robberies in Wisconsin, Missouri, Georgia, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The robberies netted $110,000 in loot.

Special agents, who had been on Slade's trail for three days, ended their hunt last Wednesday in a west side rooming house. Ladd said Slade was unarmed and offered no resistance.

Bentz, who earned the sobriquet "king of bank robbers," was arrested by F. B. I. agents in New York city in March, 1936, and is serving a 20-year sentence in Alcatraz federal prison. Other associates were subsequently arrested and sentenced to long terms.

Among the bank robberies in which Slade admitted participation, Ladd said, were those at Almond, Wis., May 5, 1937; Beloit, Wis., Aug. 3; Granton, Wis., July 15; and Auburn, Wis., Aug. 11, 1936, at a bank burglary at Gresham, Wis.

Federal Judge Pleads For Parole of His Son

Oklahoma City —(P)—Stern-faced Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer dropped his judicial robes today to plead for leniency and a parole for his son, Phil, serving 25 years for slaying his chum, John Gorrell, at Tulsa four years ago.

With all the earnestness of a defendant who might appear before him, Judge Kennamer told the state's unofficial pardon and parole board that Mrs. Kennamer was stricken with a serious illness and needed her son's companionship.

Retired Head of U. W. German Department Given Honor Badge

Madison —(P)—Dr. Alexander R. Hohlfeldt, chairman of the University of Wisconsin German department for 35 years, until he retired in 1928, has been awarded the honor badge of the German academy, Munich, Germany, for "conspicuous merit in promoting German culture."

Ten years ago, Dr. Hohlfeldt was elected senator of the academy. He was a well known figure in German-American circles of Wisconsin and the United States until his retirement.

He has lectured throughout the state and nation and his position as chairman of the university's German department, recognized as one of the leading departments of this country, placed him in the forefront of German-American education for the last four decades.

At present Dr. Hohlfeldt is doing research work and preparing a book of studies on Goethe's classic play, "Faust." He is a native of Germany, receiving a degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Leipzig in 1888.

He held a professorship at Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., before coming to Wisconsin.

Favor High School Curriculum To Meet Student Requirements

Madison —(P)—John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction, had before him today a report recommending that high school students be given a curriculum which meets their needs rather than one that is geared to college entrance requirements.

The report, containing 11 points, was signed by C. E. Ragsdale, of the University of Wisconsin, chairman, and a committee composed of members of the faculties of the university and state teachers' colleges, and representatives of the department of public instruction.

The report contends that the high schools should be maintained for the benefit of the pupils themselves, and not to meet the rigid requirements of colleges which "relatively few high school graduates attend."

Steps looking toward a development will be taken in the near future, Ragsdale said. Representatives of teacher-training colleges in the state will hold a conference soon on the problem of equipping instructors to teach several subjects instead of confining them to one specialized study.

An attempt will also be made, Ragsdale added, to persuade state colleges and the university to revise their entrance requirements to allow high school graduates to be admitted under the new plan. In addition an experimental group of from 10 to 20 small high schools from terrified people, many of them weeping. Some reported they could smell the gas and see the flames started by the attackers.

Broadcast Adaptation of H. G. Wells' Story

Prayer for Salvation
People gathered in groups to pray for salvation.

All over the metropolitan area, panicky persons jumped into automobiles and headed for the open spaces to escape the hypothetical bombing of New York.

Church services here and elsewhere were broken up by intruders who screamed the world was coming to an end.

"Is it true? Were 40 killed in New Jersey? Or 7,000 in New York? Are men from Mars attacking New York with deadly other-worldly weapons and gas? Was the world coming to an end?"

There wasn't a Martian in sight and the hysteria subsided almost as quickly as it started. But listeners viewed the broadcast with mixed feelings, principally that they had been untowardly frightened and duped.

The broadcast was an adaptation of H. G. Wells' imaginative "War of the Worlds," further dramatized and enacted by Orson Welles, the 33-year-old Broadway theatrical prodigy. Welles Americanized the locale and situations.

Announced as Fiction
Four times during the program, CBS pointed out, the announcer stressed that the story was nothing but fiction.

This comforting reiteration either escaped many of those who tuned in for the full program or was lost entirely to part-time listeners or late tuners-in, for it failed to prevent hysteria unknown to the United States since the World war.

Welles, who started the theater last season by portraying a Caesar in modern dress with fascist leanings, was overcome by the unbelievable reaction.

In a statement expressing "deep regret" over apprehension the broadcast caused among radio listeners, Welles said:

"Far from expecting the radio audience to take the program as

Woman Pours Oil On Fire; Loses Life

Mrs. Bertha Kimber, New London, Is Burned Fatally

New London —(P)—Her nightclothes turned off her body, Mrs. Bertha Kimber, 62, died at Community hospital here at 2:30 yesterday afternoon. Hardly a part of her body was left untouched by searing flames that engulfed her when her clothes became ignited, about 10:30 in the morning at her home at 1120 Division street, a former store building, where she lived alone. Police said she had been using kerosene in an apparent attempt to arouse the fire in a stove.

Her plight was discovered by Hersil Frank, a neighbor, when she was screaming outdoors, with her nightclothes aflame. He rushed to her aid, ripped the burning clothing from her and covered her with a rug. Fred Noack, another neighbor, came to her assistance, a physician was called and she was taken immediately to the hospital, three blocks away.

She was left alone about 9:30 in the morning, Mrs. Bertha Kimber, who cared for her each night, Mrs. Watson had kindled a fire in the stove earlier in the day and served breakfast before leaving.

Funeral Tuesday
Mrs. Kimber was born April 20, 1876, in the town of Caledonia and lived in New London or vicinity all her life. With her husband, who died last year, she operated the store on Division street for about 20 years.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Ernestina Bennett and Mrs. Marion Neigendienf, New London; and one brother, Charles, in California. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Fehrmann-Kircher Funeral home, and burial will be in Floral Hill cemetery. The Rev. W. E. Pankov of the Emanuel Lutheran church will be in charge. The body will be at the funeral home until the time of the services.

Deportation of Polish Jews Creates Problem

Warsaw —(P)—The Jewish relief committee for refugees from Germany was confronted with a serious situation today in trying to provide sustenance, living quarters and even beds for the men, women and children so suddenly dumped on Polish soil.

The committee estimated yesterday that 13,000 Polish Jews had been sent across the border from Germany.

The committee appealed to the Jewish public for funds, food and clothing, saying the immigration from Germany was so vast and unexpected that available relief measures were inadequate.

One outstanding difficulty was that many of the refugees have been away from Poland so long that they no longer have relatives or friends able to look after them temporarily.

As they were permitted to leave Germany with only 10 marks (about $4) each, virtually all of these repatriated Polish Jews were public charges.

24 Arrested After Clashes In Milwaukee

Violence Breaks Out at German-American Alliance Meeting

CASES UP NOV. 18

Outbreak Follows Attempt to Make Unscheduled Address

Milwaukee —(P)—Police took 24 persons into custody last night during three short-lived outbreaks of violence at a meeting of the German-American Citizens' Alliance at the auditorium, where an estimated 2,000 pickets led by the American League for Peace and Democracy had gathered.

The 24 were arraigned in district court today on disorderly conduct charges, and their cases continued to Nov. 18.

Pity police charged in from the auditorium lobby when disorder began with the start of the speaking program. The meeting, commemorating the arrival of the first German immigrants on the ship Concord in 1683, was held under protection of a court order. It was postponed from Oct. 8 and followed a long dispute over whether the alliance could use the auditorium.

Press observers counted more than 300 uniformed policemen in addition to civilian clothed detectives and deputies.

Destroy Decorations
Trouble began when an unscheduled speaker tried to address "fellow workers" inside the hall, and others tore down decorations. Under a new auditorium rule, however, no militaristic uniforms or flags other than that of the United States were permitted.

The alliance has denied charges of anti-nazis that it is linked with the German-American Volksbund. Dr. Homer Maerz of Chicago, executive director of the German-American National Alliance, discussed his hopes of bringing the Milwaukee organization into the national group, for which he predicted 4,000,000 membership within 18 months.

John C. Schafer, Republican nominee for congress in the Fourth Milwaukee district, was one of the speakers. He termed the League for Peace and Democracy "communistic" and said:

"Let no individual or group try to sovietize America, or replace democracy with a collective or any other alien form of autocracy. Let us fight and die as Americans have in the past to preserve our American constitutional system. We want no imported autocracy, whether fascist, nazi, communist or any other pattern."

Drunken Driver Fined $50, Costs

Louis Draheim, 40, Route 3, Oshkosh, Pleads Guilty

Louis Draheim, 40, route 3, Oshkosh, pleaded guilty of drunken driving when he appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning.

The motorist was fined $50 and costs with an alternative of 60 days in the county detention camp under both the county and state laws, and Judge Ryan remitted the fine under the state law. Draheim's driving license was revoked for a year.

He was arrested following an accident at 2:30 Sunday afternoon when he ran his car into a telephone pole on Highway 10 at Medina.

Draheim paid the fine.

New State Personnel Chief Will Be Named

Madison —(P)—The state personnel board and a special examining committee will meet in Milwaukee tomorrow to arrange plans for a civil service examination to select a successor to former Personnel Director A. E. Garey, who resigned recently.

British Cabinet Shakeup Seen as Speeding Defense

Troops Occupy Arab Community To Fight Revolt

British Soldiers Start Systematic Searches In Jaffa

Jerusalem —(P)—A battalion of British troops was sent today into Jaffa, largest purely Arab town in Palestine, in Britain's continuing intensive drive to quell Arab insurrection against her rule in the Holy Land.

With the ancient port under a pall of smoke from a lumber yard blaze believed to have been caused by incendiaries, officials had imposed a 24-hour curfew before the troops' arrival.

Soldiers cordoned off the city immediately and began systematic searches as the curfew came into force and all traffic in and out of the riot-ridden city ceased.

Jaffa, with a population of about 50,000, has been in turmoil for more than two months. At least 500 Arab insurgents are believed to have made it their headquarters.

Banks, post offices, the railroad station and the freight depot have been robbed. Shops on the border between Jaffa and the Jewish city of Tel Aviv have been set afire.

British officials expected this drive would restore order as in the case of the old city of Jerusalem, Gaza, Bethlehem and other towns which have been occupied by troops.

Jewish national institutions called out all Jews on a solidarity strike to last until tonight when special canvassers will collect money for a "redemption fund." To be used to support Jewish defense of the city in Palestine.

All Jewish banks arranged to remain open until 11 o'clock p. m. to receive donations, while special bureaus were set up to accept jewelry, ornaments and other contributions.

CAMERA MAN ESCAPES

Jerusalem —(P)—Thinking by Maurice Ford, British camera man for British Paramount News, saved his skin and his newsreels today.

Arab insurgents, holding him prisoner and pressing revolvers into his ribs on both sides, told him they considered the British as much their enemies as the Jews.

Ford pointed to the American nameplate on the camera with which he had been filming scenes near Jericho and assured the Arabs it proved he was American.

Some leaders demanded that he be shot anyway but after a whispered council they decided to let him go.

As the camera man drove through the gate of the insurgent headquarters an armed guard attempted to stop him again. He stepped on the gas and crashed through the barbed wire fence.

The Arabs sent another patrol after him but he beat them to the border of the British police-patrolled territory.

He had his films with him.

Student Flier Lands Despite Missing Wheel

Oshkosh —(P)—Shouted and signaled instructions helped Miss Dorothy Ragy, student flier, land unhurt after a wheel dropped off the landing gear of her plane as she took off from the Oshkosh airport in a practice flight yesterday.

Acting on suggestions received from the ground by her teacher S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh school pilot and owner of the plane, Miss Ragy made a cross-wing landing with the ship slightly tilted to the right, and the wheel held up the left side where the wheel had fallen off.

The plane nosed up, denting the propeller tip, but its pilot escaped without a scratch.

After Miss Ragy took off, airport attendants drove an automobile to the runway, so that she would not attempt to land. Then they led up the fallen wheel. Wittman, up in another plane, landed and showed instruction while Miss Ragy flew low and idled the engine.

KILLED IN SPAIN

The death in an air crash in Spain of the well-known aviator-brother of insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco became known yesterday. Lieutenant Colonel Ramon Franco (above), 42, former aviation attaché to the Spanish embassy in Washington, was killed Friday off Palma, Mallorca, while piloting a seaplane through a storm. Franco flew the South Atlantic Jan. 31, 1926, the first such trip from Europe to South America.

Dies to Answer Roosevelt Attack On Investigation

Dispute Develops Over Address by St. Louis Newspaper Man

Washington —(P)—A dispute developed today over the source of an invitation for Paul Y. Anderson, St. Louis newspaper correspondent, to follow Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the house committee investigating un-American activities, on the radio tonight.

Dies, who will reply to President Roosevelt's criticisms of the committee hearings, asserted he was informed reliably that administration officials had arranged for Anderson to speak immediately afterward. Dies' address is scheduled for 10:15 p. m. C.S.T., over the Mutual system.

Anderson, however, said he was speaking only at the invitation of William B. Dolph, manager of Radio Station WOL. He said he merely would describe the committee hearing from a reporter's viewpoint.

Projects Dropped
Dolph said he asked Anderson to speak because of a press conference comment by President Roosevelt that reporters who had covered the hearings might well be called on to describe them.

Dies said today two public works projects in his district had been cancelled since the committee inquiry began.

He added, however, that he was not prepared to charge that the cancellations were due to the administration's disapproval of the methods of the committee.

Couple Robs Bank Of Over $10,000

Brookings, S. D. —(P)—A man and a woman, the latter described as "about 16 years old and cute," robbed the Northwest Security National bank of between $10,000 and $15,000 today.

For two hours, at pistol point, they compelled bank employees to transact business, while they waited for the time vault to open out of the bank, unaware that masked guns were trained on the employees.

Bank officials said the pair "cleared out" the institution, taking even notes and personal papers of depositors. As they fled eastward they spread tracks in the road to hinder would-be pursuers.

Employees of the bank described the man as 30 years of age and roughly dressed.

Cashier John Turley said the male bandit accosted him at the bank door at 8:20 this morning, produced a pistol in his hand and said:

"This is a holdup. Walk in as if nothing had happened."

Once inside, the bandit, who carried a shotgun in addition to his pistol, was joined by the young woman. They then lined up employees who were already at work and ordered them to attend to their duties as usual. Then the pair settled down to wait for the time lock to operate.

Rich General Resigns

Belin —(P)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler tonight accepted the resignation of General Ludwig Beck as chief of the army general staff and named General of Artillery Franz Halder to replace him.

Beck, 62, was named to the post in 1933 and 1937, today was appointed lord privy seal in a cabinet shakeup believed to be preparatory to a widespread reorganization of the nation for defense.

Viscount Runciman, who tried in vain to mediate in the crisis which led to Germany's absorption of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland, was named lord president of the council.

Malcolm MacDonald, already secretary for colonies, was given the additional post of dominions secretary.

The post of lord privy seal became vacant last week when Earl de la Warr was shifted to the ministry of education. Runciman succeeds Viscount Hailsham, who resigned. The dominions post has been vacant since the death of Lord John Anderson, who gained an empire-wide reputation by his vigorous measures to stamp out disorder during his five-year term as governor-general of Benkul, is expected to take over reorganization of Britain for civilian defense, especially against air raids.

The shifts came on the eve of tomorrow's assembling of parliament for a brief session which is expected to produce attacks from all sides on the government of Prime Minister Chamberlain for the defense weaknesses disclosed by the Czechoslovak crisis.

The reconstruction of his cabinet with a view to mending those defects gave Chamberlain a reply for his critics.

London —(P)—Britain and France made new efforts today to build up their armaments in the face of Europe's unsettled future.

British Prime Minister Chamberlain called a special cabinet meeting on the eve of a three-day parliament session that is expected to be a "grand inquest" into his Munich policy.

Reports gained that he was speaking to meet demands of some of his ministers for creation of a ministry of supplies with powers to enforce an armaments speedup.

In France, Premier Edouard Daladier also summoned his cabinet for the first of a series of meetings to draft decree laws to rehabilitate French finances, the nation's most pressing security need.

Daladier, given 40-day decree powers to effect necessary reforms, was expected to have his edicts ready for President Albert Lebrun's signature by the end of the week. His "blank check" expires Nov. 15.

Says Fear Brought Fact
Josef Terboven, nazi district leader and governor of Rhineland province, declared yesterday in a speech that Chamberlain brought about the Munich agreement not because he feared the German air force.

He also said Daladier of France was not actuated by peaceful motives but took part in the Munich accord because he knew Germany's western front was invincible.

Danger of conflict between Czechoslovakia and Hungary over their deadlocked territorial dispute apparently had passed. Both nations arranged to meet Wednesday in Vienna with representatives of Germany and Italy—agreed on by them as arbitrators—to settle Hungarian claims still in dispute.

Hungary, to whom Czechoslovakia already has offered cession of predominantly Hungarian areas, expected the arbitrators' authority for military occupation of Slovak territory in Czechoslovakia within the week.

Accuse Poland
The Czechoslovak general staff accused Poland of provoking disorders in Ruthenia, easternmost section of the dwindling republic, by sending organized bands of terrorists across the northern frontiers.

Demands for another territorial revision arose in Bulgaria, which lost territory to Rumania, Yugoslavia and Greece after the World war. Premier Milan Stoyadinovich of Yugoslavia and George Kiossevanoff of Rumania met in the Yugoslav city of Nis to "discuss the situation created by the Munich accord."

Polish and German diplomats met in Berlin to negotiate on a legal tangle which caused Germany suddenly to deport thousands of Polish Jews. About 22,000 Polish Jews were said to be waiting a Polish-German agreement to determine their future residence.

In China Japanese aerial bombardments of the inland port of Wuchow, gateway to Kwangsi province, was believed to point the direction of the next Japanese drive in South China. Wuchow is 90 miles west of captured Canton.

'Trust Busters' Summarize Data In Dairy Probe

Prosecutors Study Evidence in Sweeping Investigation

Chicago—(AP)—A group of the nation's best "trust busters" reviewed today the evidence submitted to a federal grand jury which has been investigating the milk industry in the Chicago area for nearly four months.

After hearing more than 100 witnesses and examining thousands of documents, the grand jury has until Saturday to complete its prodigious inquiry into all elements of milk production and distribution.

United States District Attorney Michael L. Keene said that the tasking of testimony was concluded last week and federal prosecutors were now assembling the evidence before making any recommendations to the grand jury.

Large Staff

The staff, besides Keene, included Thurman Arnold, assistant United States attorney general in charge of the department of justice anti-trust division, and several special assistant attorneys general.

When the grand jury began its investigation last July 18, Arnold said the inquiry would include a survey of prices paid on milk and ice cream by large distributors and groups cooperating with them. He declared a year-long inquiry by department of justice agents showed that "the producer receives an extremely low price for milk in spite of high prices paid by the consumer."

Arnold added that the agents' inquiry indicated "conspiracies and agreements in restraint of trade" rather than any "accidental condition" accounted for the price spread.

Broad Investigation

Nearly every phase of the dairy industry, from the manufacture of milk bottles to the printing of milk bottle caps, was covered by the grand jury investigation.

The inquiry was broadened to include all elements of milk production and distribution—the Pure Milk association, a selling agency of 14,500 dairy farmers in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana; the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., distributors; the Chicago Board of Health, the union of independent distributors' employees and the Milk Wagon Drivers' union.

Voters Forgetting Issues as They Consider Charges Hurdled Against Heil and LaFollette

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Wisconsin politics, unpredictable as ever, took on completely new aspects today as sensational issues which could not have been and were not foreseen when the battle lines were formed a month ago monopolized attention in the final week of the general election campaigns.

To realistic observers and politicians, and probably to the mind of the average voter, all other issues characterized the 1938 campaign were swept aside this week in favor of these highly interesting, and highly inflammable questions. The alleged violation by Julius P. Heil, the Republicans' white hope for the governorship, of the corrupt practices act; the alleged use by Governor LaFollette of the state pension department and its old pension rolls for partisan political ends in his campaign for reelection.

Other Overtures

Progressive cheerleaders who trumpeted loudly the accusations of financial expenditures which were made against Heil recently today furnished awkward evidence pointed up that the Progressive state administration has attempted to make political capital through the use of pension lists which the federal social security board claims must be kept in strict confidence.

Republicans for their part, are saying as little as they can about the insistent accusations against their candidate, as John P. Chamberlain, secretary of the United States senate.

Thus in the last days of the campaign, when presumably most of the independent voters are making up their minds about casting their ballots next Tuesday, the campaign becomes enmeshed in scandal, and new - sensational - accusations and counter-accusations, and all of them pretty far removed from what were expected to be the issues of the election this fall.

Republican organization men, the members of the state central committee for example, decline to discuss the Chapple affair, although practically every one of their rank and file subordinates has been talking about it since it first splashed the headlines all over the state.

Progressives are also exceedingly uncommunicative about the pension lists which were plummeted into the campaign; with a bang last week, although less influential voters of LaFollette persuasion are frankly worried about its probable results.

For example, the Madison Progressive organ, which has been belaboring furiously against the Republican campaign and Heil's personal efforts to become governor, and which has harped for weeks on Heil's alleged statement before a legislative committee a decade ago on the large amount of money which he felt is necessary for a gubernatorial campaign, yesterday for the first time took notice of the pension department fight with the demand for the resignation of its director, George M. Keith.

The same organ declared, however, that it "does not believe that there is any serious wrong in making a state pension list available to the general public. Other records involving the private affairs of our citizens such as income tax returns, assessed valuation of property, taxes paid, police records and real estate transactions are available to the public."

The attorney general recently ruled that the names of pensioners must be kept secret, while it also a rule of the federal social security board which supplies half of the funds to make pensions for the aged in Wisconsin possible.

Thus Wisconsin's two major parties, who were certain that the fight for the governorship was between them, alone, now find themselves in mutually embarrassing situations, while the Democratic party, acknowledged by nearly everyone except the Democratic leaders, to have little show in the 1938 fight, looks on, hoping that the popular reaction to the antics of the pension list will favor its ticket on election day.

Offers to Distribute Thanksgiving Baskets

F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director, today offered his department as a clearing house for churches and organizations who offer Thanksgiving baskets to the poor. He said distribution would be more efficient in that the chances of duplication would be reduced.

City Officials To Study Budget

Mayor Calls Informal Meeting of Department Heads Tuesday Night

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Saturday received a letter from James R. Law, mayor of Madison and president of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, suggesting a meeting of city officials, board and commission members to discuss the financial problems confronting the city and the reasons.

Mayor Law said cities and villages next year will be confronted with an increased tax rate largely because of heavy relief and social security costs which have been shifted to general property taxpayers by the state. Other mandatory state expenditures have aggravated the problem, he wrote.

The fact that only a small part of the motor vehicle revenues are returned to cities and that local taxpayers must pay a larger share of local school costs than in most states further complicates the situation, Mayor Law wrote.

An informal meeting of the council and heads of boards in Appleton will be held at 7:30 Tuesday evening in city hall to study the 1939 budget. The mayor will suggest the general meeting at Tuesday's session.

State Birth Rate Up, Deaths Show Decline

Madison — (AP)—The board of health announced today that birth rate in Wisconsin for the first eight months of this year is higher than in any of the previous three years.

A decline, however, in the death rate was revealed. The board estimated that the state's population is increasing at a rate of 0.7 per cent annually.

Through Aug. 31 a total of 36,608 babies were born for an increase of 744 over the average for the same months in the three preceding years the board said. Deaths numbered 20,144, or 1,608 fewer than in the same three year average.

20 Scouts in Weekend Stay at Valley Camp

Twenty scouts of Troop 2, sponsored by the Methodist church spent last weekend at Gardner Dam, valley council scout camp.

A Saturday evening campfire program, a meeting Sunday morning, and hiking and horseback riding later in the day kept the scouts busy. H. H. Brown, scoutmaster, was in charge. Alvin Braine, senior patrol leader, acted as chort during the 2-day outing. The scouts stayed in the Miner camp buildings.

On a tour of the nation's newest fighting planes, President Roosevelt paused beside a giant four-engine naval flying boat which flew non-stop from San Diego, Calif., to the Anacostia air station at Washington, D. C. The plane, dwarfing the presidential party, carries eight 1,000-pound bombs and cruises around 225 miles an hour. Pointing out its features to the president is Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison. In front sit Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson (left) and Commander John D. Price of the air station.

Clintonville — Residents of the city of Clintonville voted against the erection of a new grade school building, 428 to 261, in a special referendum Saturday at the high school. Nearly 700 voters turned out to register their decision in the matter, which has been under consideration here since the annual school meeting in July. At that time it was decided to take the preliminary steps to secure a PWA grant on the project, which was to include the construction of a new 12-room grade building and alterations to the high school building. The entire project with additional land for school grounds and the interior school fixtures would amount to approximately $300,000. To finance the building project, it would become necessary to issue bonds to the amount of $170,000 in addition to the 45 per cent grant from the federal government.

It was pointed out that the new school is necessary because of the overcrowded conditions and the fire hazards of the 40-year-old grade school structure. Superintendent Harley J. Powell and members of the board of education expressed themselves as being in favor of the proposed building program. Preliminary sketches were drawn by an architectural firm of Green Bay for the 12-room building, which would conform in style to the present high school structure which was erected about twenty years ago. The new building would be located west of the high school and be joined with it by a connecting unit.

A Bible conference will be held at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at the Bethany church, of which the Rev. E. C. Westhouse is pastor. There will be messages on the Bible by the Rev. A. R. Longman of Arena and by the Rev. L. J. Ruf of Spring Green and other visiting pastors. The meeting will be open to the public.

A regular meeting of Fidelity Rebekah lodge will take place at the I.O.O.F. hall in this city Tuesday evening.

A group of local Odd Fellows and Rebekahs attended a booster meeting of one hundred lodges in this section of the state held Friday at Appleton. Those in the Clintonville delegation were: Claude Chandler, W. D. Holmes, T. A. Landon, Alfred Hufmann, Frank Kohl, Mrs. Kohl, Mrs. George Berndt, Mrs. W. H. Schmidt and Miss Myrtle Rockman.

The Royal Neighbors of America will hold their November meeting, Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. A. Patterson on Eighth street. Entertainment will be in charge of Mrs. John Bohman and Mrs. S. A. LaViolette.

Mrs. Edward J. Meyer and Mrs. A. V. Chamberlin will be hostesses to the Methodist Ladies Guild at the church parlors Thursday afternoon.

Special agent Hood said a statement "definitely implicating Lawshe in the murder of Vaughn and subsequent theft of his car" had been obtained."

Suspect Arrested in Desert-Slaying of Man

New Orleans — (AP)—Federal agents held prisoner today a man listed as Thomas W. Lawshe, 29, for whom they had pressed a nationwide search in connection with the desert-slaying of Virgil A. Vaughn last August near Solomonsville, Ariz.

R. B. Hood, special agent of the federal bureau of investigation here, said Lawshe was captured in a rooming house yesterday. He was unarmed and offered no resistance, Hood said.

Arrange Burial of Baby Burned in Coal Heater

Columbus, Ga. — (AP)—Burial was arranged today for three-month-old Priscilla Ann Turner, who Police Captain J. T. Spence said was burned to death when placed in a coal heater.

Spence said Mrs. Lucille M. Adams, middle-aged widow, placed the baby in the heater at her home where the infant's mother, Mrs. T. E. Turner, rented living quarters.

Mrs. Turner told officers she left the baby with Mrs. Adams Saturday at the latter's request, and went from the room. Hearing screams, she rushed back and dragged the child from the fire, but it died later.

Police Chief J. W. Satterfield said Mrs. Adams probably would be given a lunacy hearing. He said she was held on a charge of murder.

Behl Named President Of Wilson 7th Grade

Gerald Behl was elected president of the seventh grade at elections held Friday afternoon at Wilson Junior High school. A regular campaign was put on at the school Friday with speeches in the auditorium. Others named to offices are: Robert Dear, vice president; Betty Shauser, secretary; Harold Hank, treasurer; and Carl Neidhold and James Lopus, cheerleaders.

Quill, Scroll Names Committees For Year; Will Sponsor Movie

Looking forward to another year of active work, the Appleton High school chapter of Quill and Scroll, national honorary society for high school journalists, today announced the personnel of its committees.

The permanent program committee is headed by James Hensel. His assistants are Betty Heckle, Katharine Schuh and Vernon Swanson. Hensel also is in charge of the benefit theater party which the group will sponsor. Tickets for showing "Suez" at the Appleton theater are being sold for Nov. 4, 5, 7, and 8. Robert Bohn, Jeanne Foote, Emerson Jury and Roger Jones are assisting.

Four committees have been appointed to take charge of the annual alumni banquet, scheduled for the second semester. The place and menu will be determined by Mary Ellen Pomeroy, chairman, Miss Margaret Goggins, advisor, Swanson and William Wolfe. The program will be planned by Ralph Schubert, chairman, Miss Esther Graef, advisor, Robert Wilch and Miss Heckle.

Audrey Lemmer will be in charge of sending invitations with Miss Borghild Anderson as advisor. Fred Trezise and Betty Meidam will assist. The decoration committee consists of "Lary Ellen Schubert, chairman, Miss Irene Bossert, man, advisor, Bob Bodmer and Florence Mielke.

It is the work of a special committee to keep posted a list of good radio programs. Albert Wickesberg heads this group assisted by "Irish" Ginnow, Mary Ann Schaefer and Warren Buesing.

Each spring Quill and Scroll in cooperation with the English department, publishes "Patterns of Stardust," a booklet containing the best creative writing of students in the high school for that year. Publicity for the preliminary contest will be in the hands of Bodmer. The other members of the committee are Miss Enola Brandt, advisor, Miss Schuh and Donald Bohl. The editorial work in connection with the publication will be under the management of Phyllis Subora, chairman, Miss Anderson, advisor, Fred Trezise and Betty Meidam. Bob Johnson will head the business corps. Others on his staff will be Bruno Krueger, advisor, Joan Gerlach and Hubert Wettengel.

Rosella Grishaber and Herman Ecker have charge of any foreign correspondence which the chapter may carry on. Miss Pomeroy, Peggy Boyer and Wickesberg have been assigned the task of writing the words and music of a song for the group.

The December meeting will be under the joint directorship of Genevieve Schaefer and Bob Sager, two of this year's intimates. All the other new members will assist.

Downey's Republican opponent is Philip Banoff, farmer-lawyer. Twenty-four hours after Mr. Roosevelt's radio speech this Friday, former President Hoover and Chairman John Hamilton will close the Republicans' campaign. Mr. Hoover will speak Saturday at Spokane, Wash., and Hamilton will make a final radio appeal.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York city praised Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, Democratic candidate for reelection, in an address at Detroit last night.

"Frank Murphy and New York's Senator Wagner are real friends of labor," said LaGuardia. "They will help bring peace in the (labor) family."

Record 'Off-Year' Ballot Indicated In Fall Election

Thousands of Candidates Enter Final Week of Campaigning

By the Associated Press

Thousands of candidates for congressional and state offices began their final week of campaigning today amid indications of a record "off-year" vote in the Nov. 8 election.

Politicians agreed the ballots would total far more than the 33,000,000 cast in the 1934 congressional election, even though they were not expected to reach the 45,000,000-mark set in the Roosevelt-Landon presidential contest two years ago.

For the last appeals, both Democratic and Republican parties called on their national leaders. The "Reserve forces" included President Roosevelt, half of his cabinet, former President Hoover and Alred M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential candidate.

Landon was booked for an address today at Bartlesville, Okla., before returning to help the Republican ticket in his home state of Kansas.

Mr. Roosevelt will speak Friday night to a radio audience in support of the New York Democratic candidates. It is generally believed, however, that he also will mention national issues.

Roosevelt Letter

In a letter made public yesterday the president said he had not been asking voters to vote for Democrats "as opposed to Republicans or members of any other party."

"Nevertheless," he added, "I have the right to speak out in those instances where there has been a clear or deliberate misuse of my own name. That has happened in Pennsylvania."

He declared he objected to Judge Arthur H. James, Republican candidate for governor, "saying in his speeches that I have deliberately refrained from meddling in local issues in Pennsylvania because I am unwilling to put my hands in that muddy water."

The last reference was to charges of vote coercion against Governor George H. Earle and 13 other Democrats which a special legislative committee is investigating.

The president said that in his relations with the Earle administration, "I can truthfully say that I have found it at all times willing and eager to help in carrying into effect a liberal program for social and economic justice." Earle is Democratic candidate for senator.

Supports Downey

Mr. Roosevelt entered the California political scene today with a written endorsement of Sheridan Downey, Democratic candidate for United States senator.

Downey headquarters released a letter the president sent to Congressman Jerry Voorhis in which he said, in part:

"I am convinced that Sheridan is a real liberal in mind and in heart, and would bly and constructively represent the predominant liberal thought of your state."

Downey, with support from the $30-every Thursday pension movement, won in the Democratic primary against Senator William G. McAdoo, who had been publicly urged by the president to seek reelection.

Given Permit to Build New Garage

Gordon Laux Will Construct $4,000 Building On Wisconsin Avenue

A permit to build a garage building at 634 W. Wisconsin avenue was given to Gordon Laux, 734 E. Hancock street, this morning by the city building inspector. Cost of the building is estimated at $4,000. The structure will be built of concrete blocks, will be 44 feet wide and 80 feet long.

The firm of Benton, Bosser, Becker and Parnell, 228 W. College avenue, was given a permit to remodel a store building at 117 N. Appleton street. Cost of the work is estimated at $1,500. Fireproof materials will be used.

Mrs. Otto Refke, 234 E. Calumet street, received a permit to build a garage on her property. The garage will be of frame construction, and will be 12 by 20 feet in size. Cost is estimated at $75.

Insurance Firm Holds Parley Here Saturday

Ten agents of the Central Life Assurance society held a conference at the office here Saturday morning. M. G. Fox, local agent, was in charge. Prospecting and selling were discussion topics.

Following a noon luncheon at the Conway hotel, Dr. E. N. Krueger, Appleton, medical examiner for the company, headed a discussion.

Report Shows Way Toward Solution Of Rail Problem

Emergency Board Gives Constructive Advice, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Few reports that have emanated from the government over a span of time can compare in enlightened presentation or constructive advice with the recommendations just made by the emergency board of three appointed by President Roosevelt to deal with the problem of railroad wages.

True, the findings are against the granting of a horizontal cut of 15 per cent in wages at this time, and, in this respect, it is a disappointment to the railroads and their owners, but there is so much more in the report than that item and so much good counsel with respect to what ought to be done by the railroads, the labor unions, the government and the investors that, if the document is carefully studied, it will point the way at last to a solution of the perplexities of the railroad problem.

The report is 25,000 words long, yet it is far more persuasive than the official summary and, only if one takes the time and trouble to read it carefully, the statesmanlike character of the analysis made by Chief Justice Justice, the North Carolina Supreme court, Dean James Landis of the Harvard Law school and Professor Harry Millis of the University of Chicago become apparent.

Penetrating Report
To say the report is New Dealish because it deals fearlessly with problems of interest due to the bondholders or dividends the owners should not have been awarded or because it attacks the crudity of horizontal pay cuts as applied to groups of varying incomes is to ignore the fact that the report also penetrates incisively into the faltering of continuous government's subsidy or a continuously upward curve of wages when economic conditions do not warrant. Here, for example, is a paragraph which answers the labor union contention that much of the answer of the railroad problem lies in "preventable wastes" or in new legislation to fight off the competition given railroads by other means of transportation:

"That savings of a large nature can be made by attention to some of all of the matters contained in the program advanced (by the employe organizations) to eliminate preventable wastes may be admitted. Every industry undoubtedly, as government itself, commits waste because the problems of administration must rest in human and fallible hands. That those wastes can progressively be prevented must be true, for otherwise little hope would remain for the advancement of the art of management. But prevention of these wastes will involve wholeheartedly constructive effort over a period of years. If demoralization exists in human institutions, its elimination is most often not a matter of legislative enactment but of the slow building of the human spirit."

Then, in recognizing that some of the proposals from the labor organizations would put the government further into handling the railroads, the report adds significantly:

Immediate Relief
"Many of the suggestions entail other than government action, unless we conceive the railroad problem in terms of governmental management rather than governmental regulation. The elimination of these wastes, necessary though it be, thus affords little in the way of a solution for the pressing problem of immediate relief."

With relentless logic and with pointed reference to the efforts made by labor organizations to get congress to enact full crew bills and other devices to overcome the economies in payroll growing out of technological efficiency, the report adds:

"The social problem of unemployment resulting from technological development is common to most industries. It admits of no simple answer. The legislative proposals complained of (that is, by the railroads) are, in part, the answers that the employes are seeking to make to the problem of technological unemployment. The answers that can be made must of necessity be partly without the industry and partly within it. But we believe that such answers as can be made to it within the industry should flow from the processes of collective bargaining between the carriers and the men, not by resort to legislation."

"The problems of technological unemployment, are, indeed, part of those 'working conditions' which the Railway Labor act of 1926 sought to have worked out through negotiation and mediation between management and men."

There are many more passages like the foregoing which will be helpful and valuable to railroads and the employe organizations in recasting their relations in the light of the financial crisis that faces the railroads today.

Temporary Compromise
In projecting a solution, the emergency board modestly outlines a program which is distinctly a Hooveresque philosophy, in the sense that it recognizes deflation as a painful but inescapable remedy in some cases and one in which government aid can soften the blow. Here we come to the advocacy of the board of reorganization of capital structures with "reasonable sacrifices on the part of ownership" and revision by congress of "existing reorganization procedures" so that reorganization is a "real rebirth and not a mere temporary compromise be-

Year-Round Feeding Holds Summer Birds Through Winter

BY CLARA HUSSONG

During the coldest winter months we often hear or read of some lucky bird lover who entertains a great variety of birds at his feeding stand, not only the usual chickadees, nuthatches, goldfinches, downy woodpeckers and other common winter residents but some of the more uncommon species as well. Don't envy this "lucky" friend of birds, but do as he does, begin your feeding program early and stick to it religiously.

Many feeding stations are kept supplied with food the year round. This may appear foolish because though at least two-thirds of the year there is plenty of natural food for any birds which may be about. But the year-round feeding stands have several advantages over those which are maintained only through the coldest months.

For one thing, they are often the means of "holding" summer birds here through the winter. Robins, red-headed woodpeckers, fox sparrows and hermit thrushes are examples of migratory birds often reported in the state even in December or January. Why did these birds prefer to stay instead of traveling southward with their kind? Because they found a spot where food was abundant.

Shelter Is Help
Shelter for winter birds is important too, but food is more so. It has been proven by authorities that more birds die through lack of food than through lack of shelter. When sleek covers tree trunks and branches so that the insect-eaters are unable to dig for food and deep snow covers weedy pastures and wild fruit tickets winter birds must go hungry but they can usually find a place to rest until the storm is over.

In winter when big snowstorms are frequent and long-lasting such birds as quail, prairie chicken and grouse are often found frozen to death in a snowbank. Although they died because of lack of shelter, examination of their stomachs proves that they are usually in a half-starved condition and unable to travel far enough to find shelter. So it is evident that for both the ground-loving game birds I mentioned in this paragraph and for winter song birds food is more important than shelter.

If you maintain a year-round feeding station birds which feed there through the summer will attract others of their own species. Goldfinches are considered permanent residents in the state but that does not mean that the summer goldfinches are the same individuals we see in winter. Those who winter here spent the summer a few hundred miles to the north and only a few hundred miles south travel a few hundred miles south in fall the goldfinch which nested a sensibly cooperative attitude by congress, the railroad brotherhoods, the railroad bond owners and stockholders as well as by the railroad managements themselves—all of them united by a common fear of complete disintegration of a great industry. My own impression is that, with the rising costs of living due to the devaluation of the dollar's purchasing power, it is lucky for the railroad workers that they are not to suffer a decrease in wages and that now is the time for stubborn selfishness and class feeling to be superseded by an enlightened unselfishness on all sides before which no problem of a social and economic character can long remain unsolved.

Japanese Youth Comes From Hawaii to Study Music at College Conservatory Here

BY DON ANDERSON

When snow flies for the first time in Appleton, a dark-eyed, 18-year-old Japanese youth is going to have a new experience.

His name is Saburo Watanabe, a sophomore in the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, who has seen distant sprinkles of snow on the mountain tops in his homeland of Hawaii but never has floundered, half frozen and half lost, in a Wisconsin blizzard whipping down College avenue.

Among the students at Lawrence there are several who came from quite a distance to attend the college on the banks of the Fox river, but the slight Japanese youth is the farthest from home.

Saburo, although he's an American citizen, never saw this country until his boat docked at Los Angeles late this summer. He was born in Honolulu. His father is principal of a language school there and teaches the Japanese language at the University of Hawaii, where Saburo took his freshman work.

Vastness Impresses Him
As his train sped through the mountains and across the plains that lie between Los Angeles and Chicago, the Japanese youth received his most pronounced reaction to America—its vastness. And he suspects that as Old Man Winter moves nearer, he's going to get another reaction, even more pronounced as far as its physical effect is concerned.

When you've spent all of your 18 in your yard will attract the newcomer to your stand.

Keep Cats Away
In my opinion the type of stands which is erected is not as important as its situation and the type of food served. Any feeder which is partially sheltered is good enough. If snow and sleet gets into it, it can be brushed out daily. If there are no cats in your neighborhood, you will have better success.

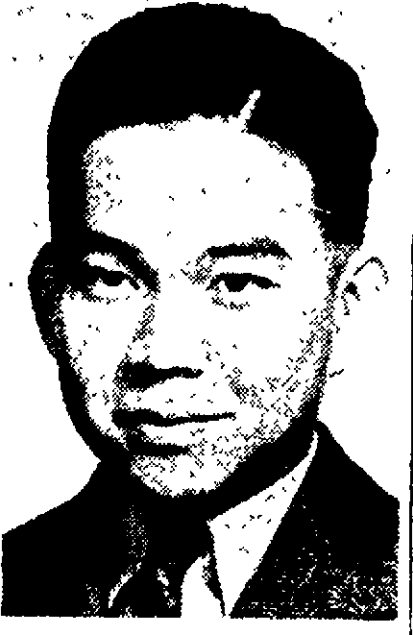

If you are putting up a stand this fall for the first time, or if you are moving as old stand to a better spot, choose the spot in your yard which has the least "traffic," that is where there is little walking to and fro. By all means get it away from a door to the house or garage or you will scare away everything except sparrows. If you can find such a spot where the stand can be seen from a window, so much the better, but don't make this your first consideration.

Cats are a menace to birds as we all know and if there are many in your neighborhood it is wise to put up a tin "cat-guard" four or five feet up the pole for those stands which are erected on a pole. Farmer's Bulletin No. 912, "How To Attract The Birds," which can be had by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., pictures these cat-guards. This bulletin also pictures different types of feeding stands and lists foods which are relished by birds.

Watch Bare Trees
Grain and weed seeds, sunflower seeds, bread crumbs and seeds of cone-bearing trees and shrubs are suggested for such birds as goldfinches, tree sparrows, purple finches, juncos and other seed-eaters. For the fruit-eaters apples, thornapples, juniper, and other berries are desirable. If you have snowberry, sumach or hammersweet growing in your yard the fruit-eating species will be much more apt to visit you than if your yard is bare of these desirable shrubs.

If your stand proves to be popular you may have nuthatches, chickadees, downies and kinglets feeding on the suet and other fat's you place there but these birds prefer to feed in a tree. Tying suet to a tree and then fastening it in a tree is a better method. Watch your bare trees this fall and see which one appears to be a favorite with the creepers, woodpeckers and other insect-eaters. Then place your suet in that tree and wait for the birds to discover it.

Don't be discouraged if the birds refuse to patronize your lunch counter immediately. If fresh food is placed out frequently and the stand is in a place favorable in their eyes, they will soon become regular customers.

FAR FROM HOME

Saburo Watanabe, 18-year-old Japanese student, never was off the Hawaiian Islands until he left for America late last summer on his way to Appleton. A sophomore in the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, Saburo isn't any too anxious about the advent of a Wisconsin winter. (Post-Crescent photo) years in Hawaii, where a thermometer reading of 60 degrees has people blowing on their hands. Wisconsin weather is bound to be a trifle jolting. "It's a bit chilly already, isn't it?" Saburo suggested yesterday, smiling.

How did he happen to select Lawrence from the long list of American colleges and universities? Well, there's a Lawrence graduate in Honolulu, Leigh Hooley, who is assistant principal of the largest high school in the city of 275,000. Hooley, who was graduated from Lawrence in 1929, is a friend of Saburo's and encouraged him to come here.

Swimming and Football
Saburo says swimming and football are about the two most popular sports in the islands. Waikiki beach, near Honolulu, is the most attractive tourist center on the island of Oahu, one of the eight principal islands in the group. And the water maintains an almost constant temperature of 72 degrees.

Football is the game, though. Saburo says. "It's played eight days a week in Hawaii. We have our leagues in which working men play and then the University of Hawaii plays college and professional teams from the United States."

The Japanese youth, who fingers a clarinet in the college pep band, is looking forward to introductions to winter sports, like skating and skiing, and to his college career here in America. But Hawaii is first and last his home. He hopes to teach there.

Saburo has studied the English language since he first started school. His pronunciation is excellent. And when you ask him about the Hawaiian maidens, whose pictures adorn literature and advertising on the islands, he says very precisely, and in good humor: "We have our share of pretty girls."

There's one aspect of American life which Saburo thinks is inferior to Hawaii's. That's pineapple. He doesn't like canned pineapple. He's very emphatic about that.

There are plenty of other Lawrence students who would have to charter an airplane in order to get home and back in a weekend.

Mary Stephens, a sophomore, is from Christiansburg, Va. Sylvia Scott, a frosh, gives her home as New York city. Jean Plummer, a sophomore, hails from way up in Flin Flon, Manitoba, Canada.

From out West come Lester Larson, a junior, whose home is Webster, N. D.; Mary Cox, senior, who lives in Fort Collins, Col.; and Marcia McCumsey, frosh, from Omaha, Neb.

Among other students who don't exactly live within a stone's throw of home are: Jean Horning, Rocky River, O.; Parke Loren, Gary, Ind.; James Orwig, St. Louis, Mo.; Lucille Parkins, Kansas City, Mo.; August Siekman, Bartlesville, Okla.; and Arthur Tichenor, Maplewood, Mo.

4 Cases of Contagion Reported in Appleton

One case of scarlet fever, two cases of chicken pox and one case of German measles were reported to the city health department last week, according to Claude N. Greisch, deputy health officer. Total cases of contagion in the city include one of scarlet fever, three of chicken pox, two of whooping cough and one of German measles.

Addition of small quantities of copper and manganese to some of the peat soils of the Florida everglades causes bountiful crops to grow on hitherto unproductive land.

Kaukauna — Cyril Klein cracked a 652 series to lead Fraternal league bowlers last week at Schell alleys, putting together games of 231, 184 and 227. His heavy hitting paced the Greenwood five to two games over the Kaukauna Knights of Columbus, with Henry Minkeberg's 588 on 202, 159 and 227 leading the Knights. The two losses enabled the Hollandtown Knights, who won three from the Moose, to go into a tie with their Kaukauna rivals. Jack Burton's 614 on counts of 171, 209 and 234 led the Hollandtowners, and Luther Kemp totaled 524 on 211, 133 and 174 to top the Moose.

In other matches the American Legion swept three from the Elks and the Masons took two of three from the Foresters. High bowlers were Herb Specht, Legion, 222, 187 and 225 for 634; L. Merlo, Elks, 200, 190 and 194 for 584; J. Krahm, Masons, 177, 172 and 207, for 556, and Bill Brown, Foresters, 179, 152 and 237 for 568.

George Lau, Thilmany Employee, Dies Sunday

Kaukauna — George Lau, 49, an employee of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company for the last 30 years, died unexpectedly at 1:30 Sunday morning at his home on route 2 following a paralytic stroke. Born in Freedom in 1889, he moved to Kaukauna 20 years ago and lived here since. He was a member of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church and of the Pulp and Papermakers union.

Survivors are the widow; three daughters, Miss Florence Lau, at home, Mrs. Urban Gerrits, route 2, Kaukauna, and Mrs. Otto Zastrow, Kaukauna; one brother, Otto, Milwaukee; three sisters, Hulda, Ella and Edna, all of Freedom; four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon at the residence and at 2 o'clock at Trinity Evangelical church with the Rev. Paul Th. Oehlert in charge. Burial will be in Lutheran cemetery. The body will be at the home from this afternoon to the time of the funeral.

Schell Bowlers Beat Crack Chilton Squad

Kaukauna — The Schell Alleys bowling team took three straight from Chilton's leading kегlers, the Old Heidelberg five, in a match here Saturday evening. The Kaukauna team bowled games of 1,052, 921 and 836, while the visitors knocked out 902, 917 and 820.

Floyd Dresser of the Schell five led everyone with a 631 series on lines of 249, 207 and 175, followed by Bill Bedat of the same team with a series of 601 on 225, 191 and 175. Other Kaukauna scores were M. Martzahl, 192, 197, 164, for 553; Carl Kuchelmeister, 189, 145, 164 for 498; Charley Schell, 187, 181, 158 for 526. The Schell team totaled 2,809.

G. Harlow hit 588 on games of 215, 212 and 161 to lead Chilton. Other Heidelberg scores were H. Eichorst, 179, 166, 151 for 496; F. Noll, 160, 211, 143 for 514; L. Steiner, 169, 173, 184 for 526; O. Steiner, 179, 155, 181 for 515. The Chilton team totaled 2,539.

Gettlinger Funeral Is Held at Residence

Kaukauna — Funeral services for William Gettlinger, 20, 817 Spring street, who died Thursday after a long illness, were held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home with the Rev. John Scheib in charge. Burial was in Pine Grove cemetery at Dale.

Bearers were Fay Prentice, Carl Enkersen, Fred Huebner, Paul Kuehn, Ray Daley and Lester Gettlinger.

Holy Cross Gridders Beaten at Green Bay

Kaukauna — Holy Cross football team traveled to Green Bay yesterday afternoon and dropped a 21 to 0 game to the Annunciation team. The winners, at the top of the Catholic league this year, scored a touchdown in each of the first three periods.

RUBBISH TUESDAY

Kaukauna — Rubbish collections on the north side will begin tomorrow. Residents will place their rubbish in containers and place them near the curb early tomorrow morning.

125 Bazaar Workers Are Entertained at Covered Dish Supper

Kaukauna — More than 125 workers who helped at the recent St. Mary's church bazaar were entertained at a covered dish supper and program last night in the church basement. Games and cards were played and dancing enjoyed. A shadow show, depicting an operation, was presented by Arthur Godfrey, Alfred Wagnitz, Miss Cell Flynn and Ben Ives. Several plays were also given, and a song, "The Vanishing Vase," sung. A balloon blowing contest and a question bee were held. The Rev. John Haen, assistant pastor, was presented with a vase. In charge of the party were Mrs. Arthur Godfrey, Mrs. Charles Weigman and Mrs. Ben Ives. Also on the committee were Mrs. Alfred Wagnitz, Mrs. John Rink, Mrs. Theodore Nytes, Mrs. Anton Schyzdik, Mrs. T. L. Seggelink, Mrs. R. Jansen, Mrs. Tim Ryan and Mrs. Van Roy.

A joint party of the American Legion and its auxiliary was held last night at Legion hall, with a program of dancing, entertainment and cards. A lunch was served. Mrs. Harry Tretheway was general chairman, with others on the committee Mrs. Walton Cooper, Mrs. Frank Femal and Mrs. Chester Garrity.

The Kaukauna Women's club will meet Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Nelson, 215 Maria street. Miss Susan Davis, assistant dean of women at the University of Wisconsin, will speak on "Wisconsin's First Main Street." Mrs. Harry F. McAndrews is program chairman.

Mrs. Al Wiedenhaupt will entertain the Happy-Go-Lucky club Tuesday evening at her home, 110 W. Seventh street.

It Is Said--

That Jerome Hilgenberg, tackle on the Kaukauna city football team, was deprived of a chance to play against Little Chute yesterday through no fault of his own. When he opened his locker to take out his equipment someone else had had the same idea and been there before him. He hopes to recover it in time to play against the Chuters here next Sunday.

Schells to Meet Gertz Team in Major League

Kaukauna — The league leading Schell five will meet the Gertz Tavern bowlers as the Major League resumes play tonight. Also on the 7 o'clock shift Hackbart's Tavern will play Ritz Tavern, while on the second shift the D and I Sales clash with Miller High Lites.

Athletic Council to Sponsor Dance Tonight at High School

Kaukauna — The athletic council is sponsoring a Halloween party tonight at the high school, with the high school orchestra providing the music for dancing. All young people of the city are invited, while parents may watch from the balcony. The affair is intended to divert Kaukauna youths from any destructive plans for the evening.

For those who still are bent on roaming the streets with pranks in mind Chief of Police James E. McFadden warned this morning that special police will be on duty to guard against destruction of property and other unwarranted activity. Immoral fun will be allowed but other violations will be dealt with severely. Chief McFadden said.

Posson is Chairman

At the dance tonight hats, horns and noisemakers will be furnished by the athletic council. All high school, junior high school and grade school students are invited. Members of the alumni association are welcome. Fay G. Posson, the alumni association's representative on the athletic council, is general chairman for the dance.

New First Ward Alderman to Begin Work at Regular Session

Kaukauna — Chris Kindler, Jr., 207 Gertrude street, elected by the council to fill the vacancy of first ward alderman left by the resignation of Gordon S. Mulholland will be seated tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock as the council meets in the municipal building. Kindler will be alderman until the April election, when Mulholland's original term will expire.

The question of the width of Island street from the bridge to Dodge street again will come before the council. At their last meeting the aldermen resolved to inspect the road with a view to widening it from the proposed 30 feet if it could possibly be done. An ordinance fixing this and other widths of south side streets will be presented.

The aldermen also have been studying a tree planting ordinance submitted by the city planning commission, and are slated to act on the measure tonight. The board of public works may recommend action on several NYA projects submitted at the Oct. 18 meeting by Supervisor Elmer Grebe.

Police Department Asks $766 Increase in Budget Estimate

The budget request to run the police department during 1939 is $50,766.75, an increase of $766.75 over the amount appropriated this year, according to figures filed in city hall.

The estimate shows a drop of about $100 in wages, $42 for telephone, $200 for car and motorcycle repairs and $100 for electrical repairs but new items provide $1,120 for new cars, $60 for printing, $75 for meals for prisoners, $25 for convention expenses, $20 for doctors, and $50 for miscellaneous costs.

Listed estimated expenses include: salaries, $45,991.75; gasoline and oil, $1,300; electricity, $250; supplies, $700; printing, $60; telephone, $250; meals for prisoners, $75; scrubbing, $100; car and motorcycle repairs, $200; water, $25; fuel, $200; convention, $25; doctor, $20; miscellaneous, $50; and new cars, $1,120.

Republican Party in Kansas Showing Signs of New Life

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Topeka, Kas.—Here in Kansas, as in New York, the yeast of new life is at work in the Republican party. Here it is clearly under the leadership of the progressive action.

The energetic young Republican candidate for governor is described by the Democrats as a radical and the Democratic crowd is taking the conservative role. These terms are vague, to be sure, but it is indicative that the Democrats, instead of charging the Republicans here with being outmoded reactionaries, are charging that they are too radical. While the terms are purely relative, the interesting thing is that the relative positions between the two parties here are now the reverse of what they have been nationally during the Roosevelt era.

This change is significant broadly of a reawakening and a readjustment inside the Republican party which is taking place most notably in New York but also in a number of other states. Young Tom Dewey, the progressive Republican candidate for governor of New York, has his counterpart here in Payne Ratner, the 42-year-old Republican candidate for governor. Ratner has come up through the county attorney's office and the legislature in which he is now a state senator. For his years he has had thorough practical experience in state politics. He introduced the resolution to ratify the child labor amendment and fought for it, a cause which was not over popular in rural Kansas. He has been attorney for railroad labor, has championed much labor legislation, and occasionally has caused some alarm among conservatives by his tax proposals.

The criticism is made that he is inclined to be too subservient to pressure groups.

The Landon crowd is strongly behind him, although it is not true, as so often reported, that Ratner was hand-picked by Landon. He was first turned up for the governorship by a couple of conservative politicians who were looking for a vote-getter.

Young Ratner is half Jewish and of course there has been some whispering about that. But it has done him as much good as harm, because actually he is a prominent layman in the Christian church and not only has been a life-long member but an officer in the church and president of its laymen's league.

The attempt to stir up race prejudice has aroused church folk to come to his defense.

Senate Running Mate Is Equally Progressive

Equally progressive is his senatorial running mate, former Governor Clyde Reed, a veteran in Kansas politics, and defeated some years ago, when he ran for renomination as governor, by the conservative Republicans led by John Hamilton, now Republican national chairman. Some of the old-timers probably will knife Reed, but his election seems assured because of a peculiar situation which throws significant light upon what is happening in the Democratic party.

Reed is running against Senator McGill, 100 per cent New Dealer who went down the line for Roosevelt on the supreme court and reorganization bills. However, McGill is a rather unsocial fellow with his own ideas about patronage, and the Democratic machine crowd headed by Guy Helvering, United States commissioner of internal revenue at Washington, doesn't like him. The ruling Democratic politicians don't oppose McGill publicly, but they won't break down and cry if he is beaten. All they want is to re-elect Governor

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Third Consecutive Term

In his discussion of a third term at the Herald Tribune Forum Mr. Rexford Tugwell said that "There is a good deal of loose talk about 'tradition.' I do not know exactly what makes a tradition." Mr. Tugwell ought to know. When there is an unwritten rule of action which has never been broken, it is not loose talk to say that the rule rests on a tradition and that it is a very strong tradition.

It is so strong a tradition that only once in American history has the possibility of a third consecutive term come within sight of being practical politics. That was in 1876 toward the end of General Grant's second term, and so deep was the opposition that the House of Representatives passed a resolution denouncing the suggestion as "unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions." There was no serious attempt to nominate Grant for a third consecutive term.

Strong Enough to Beat Grant for Third Term

Four years later, after he had been out of office during the administration of President Hayes, Grant came very near to being re-nominated. In the Republican Convention of 1880, he was the leading candidate until the thirty-sixth ballot. At that he failed. For while the tradition against letting the same man be president three times is not so strong as the tradition against three consecutive terms, it was nevertheless strong enough to stop Grant, who, according to Senator Foraker, would otherwise have been nominated by acclamation.

With the exception of Grant in 1876, no one has even tried to be nominated for a third consecutive term. Washington, Jefferson, and Jackson could easily have been re-nominated and elected. They refused. Coolidge might have been. But he refused. Theodore Roosevelt did run for a third term. But that was in 1912 after he had been out of office four years. In 1908 he refused to be a candidate for a third consecutive term.

Nothing in Constitution Limiting Stay in Office

The actual situation then is this: There is nothing in the Constitution to prevent a President from being elected three or four or five times in a row. But there is an unbroken tradition against his being nominated for more than two terms in a row, and an almost unbroken tradition against his being a candidate for three terms even if they are not consecutive. This means that while a President could be re-elected, the circumstances would have to be exceptional and the reasons for re-electing him would have to be overwhelmingly strong.

The advocates of a third consecutive term would have to show that there existed a national emergency of the gravest kind. One can imagine such an emergency. Had Lincoln, for example, lived, had the Civil War still continued at the close of his second term, the case for a third term might have been compelling. But unless the case is compelling, there is no case at all for a third consecutive term.

It may be asked how we shall know when the compelling case arises. If ever the compelling case arises we shall recognize it easily enough. The President in office will be re-nominated without serious opposition in his own party and re-elected without more than nominal opposition from the other party. It will be self-evident to the great mass of the people that the emergency is too great to risk a change of administration.

Except in a situation so extremely critical that it has never yet appeared in American history, the objection to the third consecutive term is, it seems to me, quite unanswerable. Once you remove the rule against three terms in succession you have, of course, removed the rule against four or five terms. This would literally revolutionize the fundamental character of the American Presidency. For, whereas now our political system is based on the expectation that the President's power is limited to a fixed term, the destruction of the rule would mean that a man might be President indefinitely, and that he would be entitled to try to be President indefinitely.

The fact that the same man might be President for, say, twenty years would mean that any one who opposed him was risking his whole political career, and that those who served him faithfully were best serving their own ambitions. A more certain way of destroying independence in American politics, of choking off the rise of new talent and of cultivating the spirit of subservience, can hardly be imagined. If a man might be President indefinitely, it is not evident that only the very bold would dare to oppose him and that the ambitious would have every incentive to court him?

Would Devitalize Democratic Process

To recognize the evils that this would bring, it is not necessary to dwell on the danger of monarchy. The certain evil would be a profound impairment of the party system and a devitalization of the democratic process.

A man who might be president indefinitely would be a man whom it was at once too dangerous to oppose and too profitable to support. We must remember that politicians are rarely saints and heroes, that they are just ordinary ambitious men. What man of normal ambitions would care to criticize a president who might never during the critic's career cease to be president? What normally ambitious man would fail to ask himself whether his best chance of advancing himself did not lie in taking orders from the man who was already in office? Is it not clear that to break the rule is to change the inner spirit of the American system of government?

Rests on Belief that Washington was Right

The American people have been faithful to the precedent established by Washington and Jefferson because every time, it is seriously questioned they realize again that the rule is not based upon an arbitrary and irrational prejudice but upon a deep wisdom in the ways men behave. Not every rule that Washington and his associates laid down has survived. They were not infallible and the force of the tradition against the third term does not rest upon the belief that they were infallible.

The tradition rests upon the conviction that in this important matter they were right. The precedent has become a tradition because whenever the question is seriously considered the reasons which convinced Washington, Jefferson and Jackson are found to be as compelling as they ever were. For it is one of the certain truths about popular government that the term of the chief executive must in all normal conditions be regarded as fixed at a definite limit. If there is no limit and if it is not fixed the channels of normal opposition and

NEW PARSONAGE IS DEDICATED

The new parsonage at Forest Junction, pictured above, was dedicated at a special service at Zion Evangelical church at 10:30 Sunday morning. Blaze Put Out Before Fire Fighters Arrive

Firemen were called to the Elm Tree bakery, 308 E. College avenue, at 3:30 this morning when hot ashes spilled from a metal container and set fire to some rags. The blaze was extinguished before firemen arrived. There was no damage.

A fire of leaves was put out by firemen at noon Saturday in the 600 block on E. Brewster street. Firemen were called shortly before 9 o'clock this morning to put out a dump fire north of the 300 block on W. College avenue.

County Candidates Increase Activities as Election Nears

As the county campaign gets into its final week before the November election, candidates are intensifying their vote-getting work. Brick campaigns are being waged for several of the contested offices.

One of the interesting races is the 3-way fight for the office of register of deeds. Seeking the position are Arthur L. Collar, Hortonville, incumbent Democrat; Stephen Peeters, Little Chute, Republican; and Armin B. Scheurle, Appleton, independent candidate. Peeters defeated Edward Hennicke, Kaukauna, in the primary.

John F. Lappen, Appleton, incumbent Republican; Joseph Versteegen, Little Chute, Democrat; and Robert O. Smith, Unionite, are out for the office of sheriff. Versteegen lost out in a rather close race for the job two years ago.

Raymond P. Dohr, Democrat, district attorney, also is faced by an opponent who ran against him two years ago. He is William L. Crow, Appleton, Crow defeated Adrian Gerrits, Appleton, for the Republican nomination in the primary.

Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, incumbent Republican county treasurer, and Ray L. Feuerstein, Democrat, are seeking that post. The latter sought the office unsuccessfully two years ago.

Assembly Races

Seeking the assembly post in First district are Mark S. Catlin, Jr., Appleton, incumbent Republican, and Gerald John, route 1, Hortonville, Democrat. Catlin defeated John E. Dolansky, Appleton, and Franklin C. Jesse, Appleton, for the nomination in the primary.

In the Second district race for the assembly are William J. Gantier, Kaukauna, Republican; William M. Rohan, Kaukauna, Democratic Incumbent; Antone M. Miller, route 1, Kaukauna, Progressive; and Arthur Hoolihan, Kaukauna, Unionite. Gantier defeated James Sayers, route 1, Shiocton, in the primary for the Republican nomination.

Dr. Herbert E. Ellsworth, county coroner, is seeking reelection on the Republican ticket. Opposing him is Russell Johnson, Shiocton, on the Democratic ticket.

Other candidates for county offices are unopposed. They are John E. Hantschel, Republican, county clerk; Sydney M. Shannon, Republican, register of deeds; and Robert M. Connelly, Democrat, county surveyor.

During the past three years the United States has attracted over a billion dollars worth of gold yearly from abroad, largely due to unsettled conditions abroad.

PERSECUTION AT ANOTHER DAY

Vinitus passed his cold palm across his colder brow. The heat of the September sun brought him no warmth.

The magnificence of the scene he faced but made him shudder. The beauty and expansiveness of the great Amphitheater, the dull roar from the tens of thousands assembling, all left him strangely untouched. Yet he lingered. What was about to happen, though he hated it, held him fascinated like a beady-eyed reptile.

There in a gilded box sat the Caesar wearing his diamond collar. Around about him were the most equally magnificent senators in white togas. Officers of the army with glittering weapons, great officials with embroidered mantles, completed the immediate picture. But higher up was a great and extensive sea of heads—the great common people.

Intermittently the amphitheater trembled with wave upon wave of applause, the roars and stampings of the mob as they grew impatient for the promised exhibition, when suddenly the trumpets needed that festivities were about to begin. The amphitheater became as quiet as at midnight, the iron gratings creaked and in a moment the arena held a group of people on their knees but not praying to Nero, not begging for the pity of the multitude, not looking to the purple and bloated ruler for mercy.

Meanwhile another grating opened. In rushed the lions, great tawny monsters with shaggy heads that stalked around the arena and, though hungry, did not hasten toward the victims but stretched their yellow bodies and fixed their gleaming eyes upon their prey. Suddenly one of them moved close to a man holding a child in his arms and as the father, almost convulsively, endeavored to pass the child along to safety, the animal killed the youngster with one blow of his paw, crushed its body between his jaws, released the blood that brought the rest of the pack in to dismember the bodies of the helpless. Soon the crunching of bones under the fangs of the lions was distinctly heard. Breasts were torn open with one blow of a mammoth paw, lungs and entrails littered the arena.

As the entertainment died down fresh victims were driven into the pit and fresh bodies were changed into shapeless lumps while fresh blood soaked into the sand.

But it was a great day for the Caesar who determined that the spectacle should surpass all others ever seen in Rome, and would live as long as that generation lasted. Here Nero surpassed himself for the spectacle bids fair to last as long as man continues to populate the earth.

And now again the gates open and all the wild beasts of a menagerie are let loose upon a new and final batch of victims. There are tigers from the Euphrates, panthers from Numidia, wolves, wild dogs, and hyenas, all ravenously hungry. The original spectacle lost its outline to be succeeded by a prodigious panorama of blood and bewilderment.

After a while the crowd, sated with excesses, weakly mumbled, "Enough! Enough! We can stand no more." But more there was to be. For Nero had devised a final spectacle for the purpose of clearing the arena and still further amusing the people. Now, from all sections appeared detachments of giant blacks, savagely adorned with feathers and armor with bows. They adjusted their arrows and shot them into the milling crowd of beasts. The killers, their stomachs full, were themselves to be slain. And so the dizzy arrows whizzed on until at last every living thing in the arena perished.

And the Caesar, Nero, turned to his late and began to play to quiet his nerves at the spectacle's end.

Such is a page of history out of the long silent past. But it would be incomplete without understanding that at the very base of all this cruelty, bloodshed and persecution was intolerance.

Those destroyed, humble and inoffensive as they were, had been paraded as the incendiaries of Rome, the vile monsters who had destroyed with the licking flames of fire the ancient treasures of the people. They were pictured as men and women who had drunk the blood of infants, poisoned the water of workers and cursed the entire human race.

And so fanatically were they described, and so accurately did the people believe the description, that the populace felt a certain weakness in the inability of man to devise tortures and punishments that could fit the enormity of their offenses. After 1900 years the stains on the sands of that Roman amphitheater still live. And they must continue to live if for no other reason than to prevent a recurrence of man's descent into the abyss. The same charges with many variations are made today by Nero in many forms in many places and although there is much to wish for by way of improvement in the relations of peoples it cannot be denied that great advancement has been made since that awful day in the zenith of Nero's power.

THE PRESIDENT AS A WORLD STATESMAN

What object Mr. Roosevelt may have in hurling invective across the tossing Atlantic at Italy and Germany he must know. No one else seems to understand.

To date the President has cut anything but a graceful figure on each of the three occasions when he asked attention to his oratorical efforts on world affairs. The first time he was going to end the Japanese invasion of China by calling a meeting at Brussels. Spokesmen for the White House, those who walk the plush upon the inner sanctum, told the world to be prepared for a new formula, something that would shake it to the roots. England wagged her tired head which might have been construed as "just another theorist we have to put up with." The Brussels meeting broke up like an egg falling on the floor.

This experience did not quiet Mr. Roosevelt for long. Coming through Chicago he spoke of the quarantine he was going to put on these dictatorial nations. Perhaps the fumes of the stockyard had something to do with the speech. But the dictatorial nations just shook their fists at us, ground their teeth a little harder and went on about their own merry business while we backed down from the bluff.

It took the President until recently to forget that experience. But something more than mere defeat or fiasco is needed to keep Mr. Roosevelt's bubbling spirits down. Just as he prepared his most recent darts at Italy and Germany—he never imputes any wrong to Russia—his ambassador to England was whistling another tune while France was discarding all Red influence in the government and her premier had announced a very friendly and conciliatory attitude toward Germany.

No one has ever let Mr. Roosevelt down with such a thud as his international friends. He gets out of step with them too early in the march or catches their fever after they are over it.

In the meantime a great flood of abuse and defamation is loosened upon America by Nazi and Fascist newspapers. We have "joined the war agitators," Mr. Roosevelt is trying "to cut the ground from under attempts at peaceful understanding," and America is accused of stimulating "a war psychosis."

If all this quarrelsome grappling and jujitsu swappings does anything it brings us a step nearer to embroilment in European controversies.

Indeed Mr. Roosevelt is going along that same old road, the one with the deep ruts and pools of blood in it, that Mr. Wilson trod and dragged this nation after him. First a heap of useless language concerning matters that are no business of ours. Then a new form of idealism—perhaps "rid the world of isms." The other stations on this road to Calvary are plainly marked out.

What possible advantage can accrue to this country by these tauntings and screamings and grimaces across the ocean?

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

WOMAN OF SORROW

Woman of sorrow,
In your deep eyes
Lives no tomorrow
Of glad surprise.

Yesterday's waken.
As memory
Is overtaken
By days to be.

Loneliness lingers
In your dull stare.
In restless fingers
And ill-kept hair.

Youth that shone from you
In radiance
Now has gone from you
By sad mischance.

Ace falls across your
Strangely calm brow.
Stressing the loss your Spirit knows now.

Woman of sorrow,
Life is not long
You will soon be
Joy from a song.

Rising one morning
With sorrow done,
You face the dawn
Of God's day begun.

Opinions of Others

ALL TAXES!

Adam Smith remarked that there was nothing one Government was loath to learn from another except how to invent new taxes. And Francis Bacon in his essay on the true greatness of kingdoms declared, "Neither will it be that people over-lad with taxes should ever become valiant. No people over-charged with tribute is fit for empire."

Yet over taxation is not without its blessing in disguise. It awakens the people and makes them more alert to affairs of government. The wise and now half-forgotten Thomas Jefferson wrote: "The purse of the people is the real test of sensibility. Let it be drawn largely, and they will then listen to truths which would not excite them through any other organ."

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—There are a couple of sensational items about women's wear which I shall set down, after which we can move on to data of more consequence.

Miss Judith Allen, whom you have seen in pictures has made arrangements to grow her own silk stockings. I'll leave it to anybody if that isn't a sensational item. There's a catch in it, of course: Judith isn't really going to grow her own silk stockings. That is just the quaint way her press representative has of phrasing it. What he means is that Miss Allen is going to plant a few mulberry trees on her farm up near Danbury, Conn. "Mulberry trees," Miss Allen explains sweetly, "are the bread-and-butter of the silk-worm." A very neat phrase, Miss Allen. Remind me to use it sometime.

Miss Allen has given the matter a bit of thought. She reads books of something. She consulted a Japanese who used to be in the silk business, and they decided mulberry trees would do all right in Connecticut; and if the trees do all right, your silk stockings are practically made. Don't argue with me about it. I'm just telling it the way they tell it to me.

Miss Allen says mulberry trees will grow practically anywhere in the United States, but she picked on Connecticut because her farm is there. A silkworm spins about 1,300 yards of silk and then goes into a coma. Miss Allen was not sure why the worm went into a coma, and I haven't the faintest idea. I was home with the measles the day they discussed comas at school, but I can give out loud with comas.

The pretty address with the mulberry tree complex believes there is practically no limit to the possibilities of silkworms. A female silk moth lays about 800 eggs, and a silk farm is good for ten crops a year, which gives you an idea of how simple the thing is.

Funny nobody ever thought of this before. It just goes to show you how terrific Hollywood is.

My other sensational women's wear item has to do with panties which, I assure you, is a good word, used in all the department store advertisements. Panties, it develops, are suddenly becoming passe.

I garnered this morsel of news on the recent run down to Puerto Rico, which shows what one can garner if he puts his hand in the lingerie and undies (what a word!) for American women. Puerto Ricans being super deluxe at fine needlework. Orders for panties have dropped to practically nothing in the last six months. The reason? Women are wearing girdles and similar hip-holding harness.

Most of the needlework in Puerto Rico is done in the home. Agents of garment houses ride on horseback into the hills, leave the material at the homes, and ride back later to collect the finished garments. Lately the government has gone into the business, employing about 500 workers. In true governmental style, they have figured out just how many hours of labor are required to make a gross of garments. Consequently in the government organization the articles are spoken of as "113-hour night-gowns" or "95-hour slips."

All-fired efficient, then government fellows.

I'm still having trouble with that press agent who tried to sell me a bill of goods about Jeanne Lorraine's dog. (The press agent told me that Miss Lorraine, of the dance team of Lorraine and Rogan, had a toy collie which she wore as a furpiece, and that the collie was so un-life-like that people thought it was a genuine furpiece. It's a little mixed up, but I'm sure you follow me.)

Now comes the press agent—Mr. Carl Erbe—and he not only reiterates his earlier fantastic claim that the dog actually fools experienced furriers, but gives me to understand that the dog even fools the British government.

"Miss Lorraine took the collie to England," says Mr. Erbe, "and got him past the dog quarantine by wearing him around her neck as a furpiece when she went through customs."

The dog—Jiggs—lies around Miss Lorraine's neck motionless as long as four hours at a stretch. That is very good lying, if you get what I mean.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Monday, Nov. 3, 1913

At noon that day nearly one-half of the necessary $100,000 had been raised for a Young Men's Christian association building in Appleton.

Permission had been granted the Fox River Valley Mercantile company to build a 150-foot concrete dock and warehouses at Little Chute on the canal bank. The move had arisen following the report and perfection of an organization to establish a line of barges to play Lake Winnebago from Fond du Lac to Neenah and Menasha and the Fox river valley to Green Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Dutcher returned the previous evening from Milwaukee where Mr. Dutcher officiated as head linesman in the Lawrence-Marquette game. Lawrence won the game by a score of 14 to 13 after numerous disputes with the head referee.

Appleton High school gridgers turned back Oconto, 13 to 6, in a tilt here the previous Saturday.

10 YEARS AGO
Monday, Oct. 29, 1928

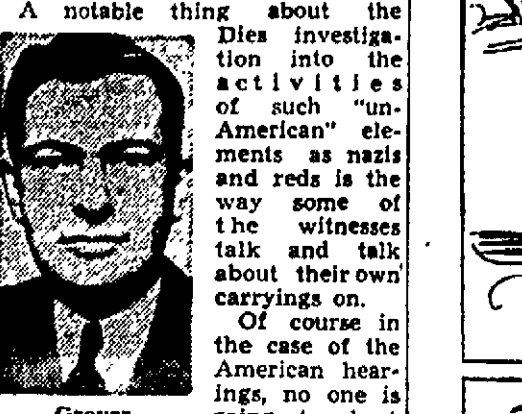

Joseph Meyer, Appleton, was reelected president of the Fourth district Wisconsin Central Verein at the annual meeting Sunday afternoon at St. Mary school at Menasha. Other officers reelected were G. A. Fahrnkruug, Menasha, vice president; Moritz Heineman, Appleton, secretary; Joseph Bloechli, Oshkosh, treasurer.

John Catlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Catlin, Sr., Appleton, had been awarded honors for his first two years of work at the University of Wisconsin.

The New London election board for Nov. 6 had been announced by County Board Chairman Ike Poeple. Poeple was to serve as election inspector with Mrs. Bert Schaller, Mrs. Charles Abrams, George Feunel, L. M. Wright, Chester Allen and Carmine Moody acting as assistants.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington—A notable thing about Russian propaganda trials is the way the witnesses talk and talk about their own misdeeds:

A notable thing about the Dies investigation into the activities of such "un-American" elements as Nazis and Reds is the way some of the witnesses talk and talk about their own carryings on. Of course in the case of the American hearings, no one is going to shoot anybody at sunrise or send anybody off to Siberia. But they are fascinating, just the same.

The most recent witness we have heard is Clyde Morrow of Detroit who told the committee he had been a communist organizer and strike leader but wasn't any more. To prove his case he showed his communist passport, with the stamps showing the several years he had paid dues since joining in 1932. His communist name was C. Main. Communists, he said, take special names from graveyards or telephone books.

He Gave 'Em Names
Morrow named over all the communists he knew, in connection with Detroit labor troubles, and added a lot of names of individuals, including a dozen or so Detroit teachers, who he said had walked along the street with communists, or had attended lectures by prominent communist speakers, or in other ways had caused him to think they might be communists.

Previous red-and-nazi hearings in the House have been much like the present one. Witnesses are invited to pour out their testimony without cross-examination.

At one point Mr. Morrow began to read a long typewritten statement purporting to be a summary of strike activities in Detroit written by another communist.

"How do you know that is an authentic statement?" asked Rep. Dies of Texas, chairman of the committee.

"I KNOW it is," Morrow said. "Proceed," said Mr. Dies.

It's Catch-As-Catch-Can
To reporters trained to the ways of courts, the hearing sometimes seems a fantasy. Congressmen can't be punished for libel for statements on the floor, nor can witnesses be forced to answer congressional committees, so almost anything goes, proof or no proof.

One entertaining bit of evidence Mr. Morrow supplied the committee was how to start a strike. He told how he and a group he called communists started a strike in the Briggs (auto bodies) plant in Detroit.

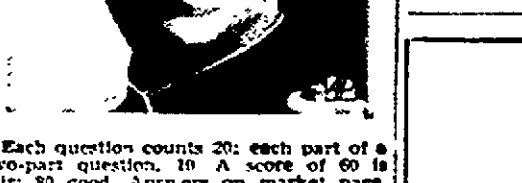

Took Over the Works
Two hundred communists were rounded up from Toledo, Pittsburgh, Pontiac and Flint. Supplied with faked identification badges they filtered into the plant through many entrances, turned off power switches in key places and then rushed out to the assembly lines to tell the startled workers that "We are on strike."

From then on they kept the men "at fever pitch" by stories that the company was bringing truck loads of strike breakers and militia from distant points and that the men better prepare to defend their jobs.

Only 500 men were thus put on strike, Morrow said, but added that the picket line was swelled by 5,000 unemployed rounded up by the communists.

The committee hearings, once a great show in Washington, are now a sell-out here any more. One casual spectator appeared to hear Mr. Morrow.

What Is Your News I. Q.?

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair; 80 good. Answers on market page.

1. Name this Balkan king. How did his country recently figure in the news?
2. This year's convention is the first ever called by CIO. True or false?
3. What name has Hitler given the "Siegfried" defense line on the French frontier?
4. How many congressmen are to be elected in November?
5. What Chinese city recently fell to the Japanese with scarcely any bloodshed—(a) Hankow, (b) Canton, (c) Hongkong?

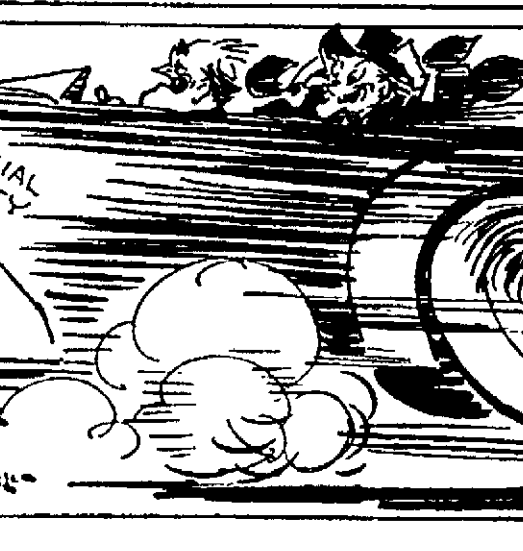

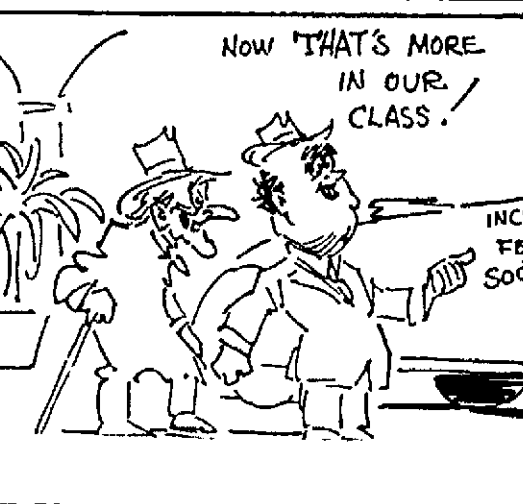

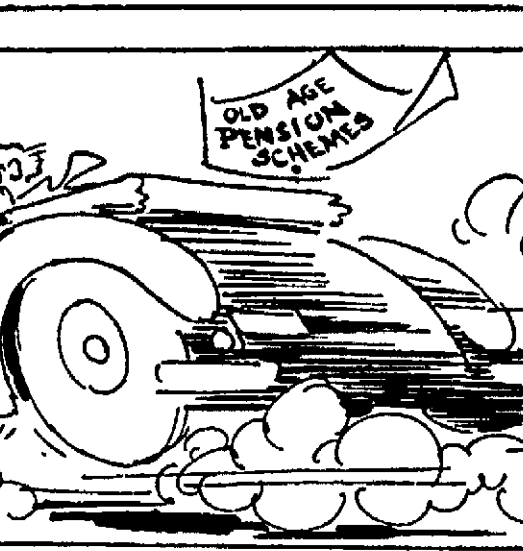

SOON FORGOT

Iowa City, Ia.—(U.P.)—Memory tests at the University of Iowa showed that 6,655 sixth grade school children forgot what they had read almost as soon as they read it.

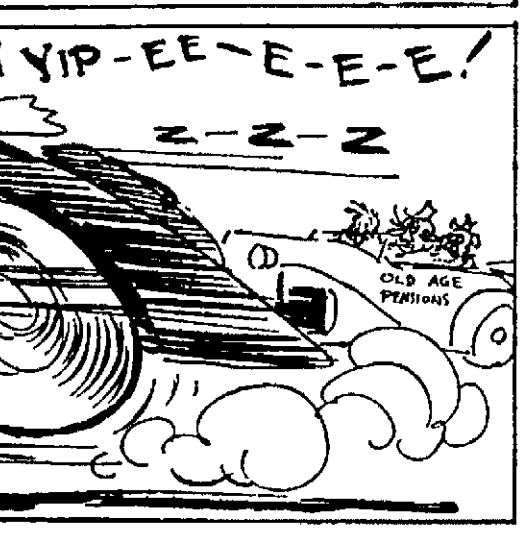

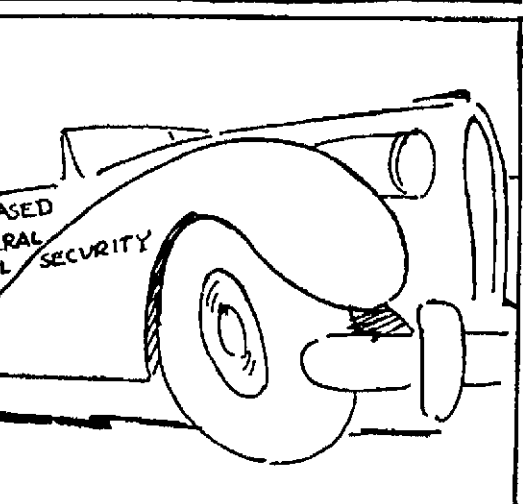

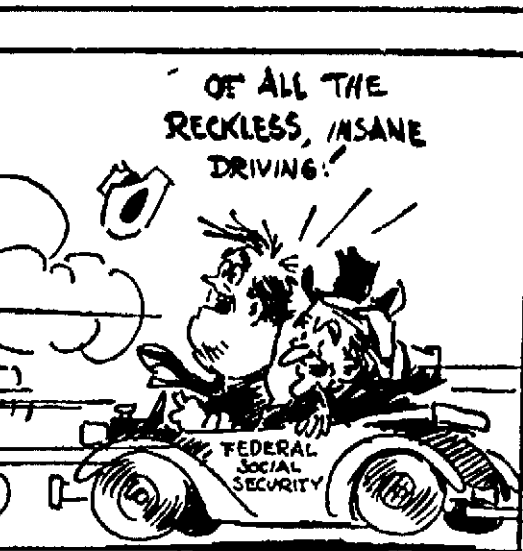

Herbert F. Spitzer made the tests for a master's degree. He gave each child two 600-word articles and quizzed them after the readings. He found the children forgot 44 per cent of the facts contained in the articles shortly after reading. A week later they had forgotten 67 per cent.

Spitzer thereupon devised a "recall" test to be applied immediately after reading. These were found to reduce forgetfulness considerably.

Low Prices of Wheat Spurs Republican Hopes in Kansas

CLYDE M. REED
Woods Disappointed Wheat Growers

(This is the fifth in a series of articles describing campaigns of national significance.)

Topeka—A 50 per cent decline in the price of wheat in the past twelve months put Kansas in the doubtful column for the November congressional election.

The nation's major wheat-producing state, Kansas joined the New Deal parade behind the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932. When grain prices slumped to the depression bottom, the "breadbasket" state revolted against the Hoover ticket despite the fact a native son, Charles Curtis, was the vice-presidential candidate.

Turned Down London
It stayed in that parade in 1936 even though its governor, Alf M. Lanahan, was the Republican choice to replace President Roosevelt in the White House. Wheat prices were on the upgrade and farmers were receiving millions in farm benefit payments.

This year the situation is different. A year ago wheat was bringing the Kansas farmers slightly more than a dollar a bushel. Now chill precedes these symptoms and adds to the misleading picture of "sore throat." Steadily the stiffness or spasm extends to other muscles and general convulsions follow. Strychnine poisoning causes similar spasms or convulsions, but between the convulsions of strychnine poisoning there is no such constant rigidity as there is in tetanus. Usually the temperature rises to an extreme height. The patient's mind is perfectly clear and he suffers much pain from the convulsions. Most cases terminate fatally. If the patient survives for four days, there is a good chance of recovery.

A wound that bleeds is less likely to be infected with tetanus or other infection than a mere abrasion, scratch, puncture or laceration that bleeds little or not at all. Best prevention against lockjaw is immediate thorough disinfection of fresh wounds under doubtful environment, and immediate injection of 500 units (at least) of tetanus antitoxin; a second dose of the antitoxin should be had a week later.

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO" If November 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. until noon; from 2 to 4 p. m., and from 8 to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 to 10 a. m. from 6 to 8 p. m.; and from 10 p. m. until midnight.

There will be many occasions this day that will be conducive for you to reveal the inner working of your mind, so harbor no disagreeable or petty thoughts. If you seek freedom from any bad habit you have, you may have no difficulty in overcoming it this day. This evidently will be a day when much constructive work will be done and the average person's earning capacity enhanced. You must be practical and not let visionary ideas cause you to waste valuable time. Absent-mindedness might lead to accidents. Respect the beliefs of others, and let kindness keep you from using ridicule as a weapon to win any dispute or gain some point. Regulate your life this day according to your own ideas, providing you allow your love for pleasure, married and engaged couples and persons with matrimonial prospects must be careful that no third party poisons their minds by innuendo or suggestions of a derogatory character.

If a woman and November 1 is your birthday, you are apt to have very strong opinions. An unwillingness to give in when you have once taken a stand may cause you many unhappy moments, unless you overcome this tendency. Never allow your love for pleasure to interfere with your marital happiness. As a professional dancer, singer, actress, writer, designer, interior decorator or business executive you are likely to find yourself embarked upon a phenomenally successful career. It takes two to make a happy marriage, and if you do your part your husband in all probability will do his to make your marriage what it should be.

The child born on November 1 usually craves affection, companionship and popularity. Ambition perhaps will motivate most of the important actions of this child's life. Children born on this date frequently exercise a great influence over the lives of those with whom they come into close contact. If a man and November 1 is your natal day, avoid the use of ruthless tactics if you expect to succeed and to be happy. Force seldom wins a permanent victory, so try not to resort to it.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

PREVENTION OF LOCKJAW

Tetanus, commonly known as "lockjaw," is caused by a germ, formerly called Clostridium tetani, but now called Clostridium tetani, which is a natural inhabitant of the intestinal tract of herbivorous animals, particularly horses and mules. It was found in 25 per cent of human fecal specimens examined.

This deadly disease occurs only as a result of invasion of the body tissues, the blood, by the specific germ, and tetanus germs invade the blood or tissues only thru cut, puncture, burn, scratch or wound of some kind. Any such wound made by an object that may have been contaminated by the excrement of animals, or a wound made when the skin is soiled with recently fertilized garden soil, barnyard dirt or street dust (especially country roads or streets where horses are used) must be considered a possible source of lockjaw. Wounds or burns made by fireworks, toy pistol caps, the penetration of wadding or powder grains from exploding firecrackers and the like, are notoriously dangerous as favoring development of tetanus.

Organize Needlework Guild Branch in Appleton to Help Provide Clothes for Charity

A BRANCH of the Needlework Guild of America, whose object is to collect new garments and distribute them to hospitals, homes and other charities, has been organized in Appleton. Its temporary officers are Mrs. Thomas N. Barrows, president; Mrs. Otto Kress, vice president; and Mrs. Cyrus Daniel, secretary-treasurer.

5th District Moose Lodges Hold Conclave

LOYAL ORDER OF MOOSE and Women of the Moose from the fifth district were entertained by the Appleton lodge and chapter Sunday afternoon and evening. About 75 men were present for initiation in the afternoon at the hall, while the women were entertained at cards at Conway hotel. A joint buffet supper was held at the Moose hall with local Women of the Moose serving. In the evening a dance entertained both groups.

Prizes at five hundred were won by Mrs. Emil Sommerfeld and Miss Marie McCoy of Fond du Lac, at schafkopf by Mrs. Rose Pakalski, Green Bay, and Mrs. William Nowell, Jr., Appleton, and at bridge by Mrs. Oscar Kuntz and Mrs. Erna Mueller, Appleton. The supper committee included Mrs. Jack Sack, chairman; Mrs. William Nowell, Jr.; Mrs. Kuntz; Mrs. Mueller and Mrs. Charles Kaufert, Menasha.

A 6:30 dinner at Hearthstone tea room Tuesday evening will precede bridge for Past Chief of Pythian Sisters. Hostesses will be Mrs. George H. Schmidt, Mrs. William C. Jacobson and Mrs. Carl Elias.

A delegation of members of Harvey Pierre auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars will go to Madison Wednesday and Thursday for a school of instruction and conference at which the national president, Mrs. Anna Mae Loefer, St. Petersburg, Fla., will be present. Following registration Wednesday morning and a luncheon at noon, a school of instruction will take place at 1:30 in the afternoon at the Lorain hotel, and a banquet will be served there at 6:30 in the evening, to which the men have been invited.

Thursday's program will include a radio speech by Mrs. Lochner at 10:45 in the morning over WIBA, and a luncheon at Veterans Administration hospital followed by a tour of the hospital. Those who plan to go from Appleton include Mrs. Walter Bogan, Mrs. Robert Olson, Mrs. James Brown and Mrs. Julius Homblette.

Clarence Greiners Entertain Saturday At Halloween Party

A Halloween costume party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Greiner Saturday evening in the recreation room of their home at 524 E. Randall street. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ashman, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Oldenberg, Mr. and Mrs. M. How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 40), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worry about her fading, loss of pep, dilly-dilly, upset nerves and moody spells. Just get more fresh hair, a new sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps to build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and exact calm, jittery nerves and slow disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Pinkham's is WELL WORTH TRYING.

ferred, a donation of money, constitutes membership. There is only one meeting a year.

For a city of this size, 1,100 garments, which means 550 members, is the minimum. Mrs. Barrows announced. No figures on the present Appleton membership were yet available, because the workers are still conferring with prospective members. There are branches of the Guild all over the country, the nearest being at Green Bay.

Aids in Relief Work Officially affiliated with the American Red Cross, the Guild cooperates with it in local and national relief work in times of disaster. It is also affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and entitled to representation at its meetings, and it is a member of the National Conference of Social Work.

All garments collected by the Appleton branch are intended to be used for local charity work. Printed forms of inquiry will be sent to each of the various charities and charitable institutions in the city, and when these are returned they will furnish the Guild officers with complete information as to the need. The garments and money are collected and distributed once a year, preferably in October or November.

Articles may be made at home if preferred, but all kinds of warm, ready-made garments, sheets, pillow cases and other articles are acceptable. They must, however, be new, because the Guild feels that the effect of new, substantial clothing upon a person discouraged by sickness or other causes is a moral uplift.

Special collections of garments and money may be taken at times of local, national and international disaster.

The Guild is non-sectarian in its membership, all creeds, classes and social working together. It is unique in that it aids no specific charity, but ministers to many charities.

Valley Missionary Federation Convenes

Mrs. J. O. Koppin, Appleton, presided at the meeting of Fox River valley Missionary Federation of the United Lutheran Church in America which was held Sunday afternoon and evening at Trinity English Lutheran church. Leaders were Mrs. Samuel Roth and Mrs. Philip Schwanke, Neenah, and the evening speaker was John Yonan, Appleton, who discussed "The Contribution of the American Missions in the Near East" and showed movies of a recent trip to the Holy Land.

Devotions were based on the theme of the recent Milwaukee convention, namely, "If I be His disciple, I will grow in love, knowledge, faith, service, gratitude, peace and stewardship."

Milton Berndt, Oshkosh, sang "Trees" and "The Garden of My Heart" at the evening meeting, and the Rev. E. R. Wicklund, Oshkosh, gave the closing benediction and prayer. Supper was served by the local missionary society with Mrs. John Wagner, Jr., as kitchen chairman and Mrs. G. E. Tesch as dining room chairman. Mrs. George E. Johnson led community singing.

Officers of the federation who will hold over for another six months are Mrs. Koppin, president; Mrs. O. N. Lunstadt, Oshkosh, vice president; and Mrs. E. H. Christensen, Neenah, secretary-treasurer. The local missionary society will meet Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. August Zanzig, 1109 N. State street, when Mrs. J. Kromer will give the topic.

OFFICERS MAP WORK OF NEW GUILD BRANCH
Temporary officers of Appleton's newly organized branch of the Needlework Guild of America, "the charity that helps all charities," are shown above as they conferred on methods of bringing the membership up to a minimum of 550. Left to right, they are Mrs. Otto Kress, vice president; Mrs. Thomas N. Barrows, president; and Mrs. Cyrus Daniel, secretary-treasurer. The annual contribution of two or more new articles of wearing apparel or household linen constitutes membership in the Guild. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Halloween Colors Decorate Hall as Elks Stage Party

Grinning jack-o-lanterns and yellow corn stalks gave a friendly atmosphere to the Halloween dance given by Appleton Elk lodge Saturday night at Elk hall. Orange and black crepe paper further carried out the seasonal theme. Sixty-five couples were present. A. J. Gerharz was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Twenty-two riders took part in a paper chase given by Appleton Riding club Sunday afternoon, the largest ever held by the club. The group followed a trail which included 10 miles of cross-country riding. After the paper chase the entire group went to Two Rivers where it was entertained at a Halloween dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Galecki.

Seventeen tables of cards were in play at the second of a series of schafkopf parties given by St. Mary congregation Sunday afternoon at Columbia hall. Prizes were won by Mrs. Anna Kees, Mrs. Susan Hughes, Ernest Bellin and John Burke, and a special award was given to Mrs. L. O. Schweitzer. There will be another party next Sunday.

Mrs. John Noll, Miss Elsie Hoffman, Mrs. Emma Bethe, Mrs. Leo Haessly, William H. Russell, Mrs. H. Kositzke, John Schmidt and J. K. Lloyd won prizes at schafkopf and Mrs. Mike Wagner and Mrs. Albert Beltz at dice at the party given by Fraternal Order of Eagles Sunday afternoon at Eagle hall. Thirty-two tables were filled.

Wallace Anderson, 823 W. Lorain street, whose birthday anniversary is today, was honored at a combination Halloween and birthday party Sunday night at his home. Halloween games and bobbing for apples entertained the guests. Those present were Shirley Schultz, Jerry Rehfeldt, Eugene Schultz, Norbert Rahn, Carl Rahn, Bobbie Derfus, Norman Wassman, Howard Patterson, Buddie Uman, Henry Kuse and Kenneth Anderson.

Marcella Krueger of Bonduel Is Bride of Gerald Stallman

GERALD F. STALLMAN, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Stallman, 518 E. Wisconsin avenue, took as his bride in a ceremony performed at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in St. Paul Lutheran church at Bonduel Miss Marcella Krueger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Krueger, Bonduel. A number of Appleton guests were present at the wedding.

The bride was attended by two sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Ethel Stallman as maid of honor and Miss Evelyn Stallman as bridesmaid, while Mr. Stallman had as his attendants two brothers of the bride, Robert and Milton Krueger. The Rev. W. J. Plischke performed the ceremony.

A wedding dinner was served at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents to immediate relatives, and a reception was held at 8 o'clock in the evening for a larger group of friends and relatives.

Mr. Stallman and his bride will be at home after Nov. 20 at 4131 Jones street, Eau Claire. He is employed by the Northern States Power company of Eau Claire.

Max Ziepkke, Weyauwega, who has been visiting in Aberdeen, S. D., the last week, surprised his friends when he returned to Weyauwega on Saturday with his bride, the former Miss Marie Zick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zick, Aberdeen. Their romance started seven years ago when Miss Zick visited relatives in Wisconsin. They were united in marriage Oct. 25 by the Rev. R. R. Gorman in the Catholic parsonage in Aberdeen. They were attended by Miss Florence Zick, sister of the bride, and Robert Reidle, cousin of the bride.

Their honeymoon was the trip to their Wisconsin home. Miss Zick, a beautician, owned and operated a beauty shop in Aberdeen before her marriage. Mr. Ziepkke is the son of Helmut Ziepkke, Weyauwega. They will make their home in Weyauwega, where the bridegroom is employed as village water commissioner.

Oakley-Leitzke
The marriage of Mrs. Sylvia Oakley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schinke, 1120 N. Morrison street, to Roland Leitzke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leitzke, route 3, Appleton, was solemnized in a ceremony performed at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the parsonage of Emmanuel Evangelical church by the Rev. G. H. Blum. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schinke, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, attended the couple. A wedding supper was served to about 50 guests at the home of the bride's parents, and a dance was given in the evening at the De Wall hall on E. Wisconsin avenue. A midnight lunch was served to about 70 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Leitzke will live at 1120 N. Morrison street until their own home is completed. The bridegroom is employed by Robert Schultz, contractor.

Fenton-Schaefer
Miss Estella Fenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fenton, New London, and Alvia Schaefer, New London, were married early Saturday afternoon at Waupaca. The couple will make their home at New London, where both are employed.

Prahl-Thoma
Attended by four bridesmaids and a maid of honor, Miss Sylvia Prahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Prahl, route 3, New London, became the bride of Alvin Thoma, New London, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Thoma, route 1, Manawa, in a ceremony at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Emanuel Lutheran church in New London. The Rev. W. E. Pankow performed the nuptial rites.

Mrs. Alvin Knoke, Appleton, sang "O Perfect Love" to the organ accompaniment of B. H. Escher. Miss Mabel Thoma, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Marlin Prahl, brother of the bride, was best man. Bridesmaids were Miss Marie Thoma, Miss Mildred Schaefer, Miss Gladys Prahl and Miss Hilda Ploetz. Ushers were Leonard and Harvey Thoma and Melvin and Arthur Prahl.

Following the ceremonies a reception and dinner were held for about 150 guests in the church parlor. Another reception was held later at the home of the bride's parents and the young couple entertained at a wedding dance at the Bowers pavilion in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Thoma will be away for a week on a honeymoon trip and on their return will make their home in New London where Mr. Thoma is employed with the New London Ice and Fuel company. The former Miss Prahl is a graduate of New London High school and has been employed at the C. A. Vandere department store at New London the last five years.

29 Councils Represented as K. of C. Officers Gather at Monte Alverno Retreat House

NEARLY 120 state officers, state committee chairmen, district deputies, and grand knights, financial secretaries and other officers of 29 subordinate Knights of Columbus councils from northeast Wisconsin, the Fox river valley and more distant points as far west as Chippewa Falls and Medford attended the regional meeting sponsored by Wisconsin State council at Monte Alverno Retreat house Sunday.

The meeting which was the third and last of three fall meetings held by the state council and the largest attended of the three, opened at 10 o'clock Sunday morning and continued until 4 in the afternoon, the men taking time out for luncheon which was served at the retreat house. William T. Sullivan, Kaukauna, state deputy, presided.

Five state officers, eight state committee chairmen and co-chairmen and seven district deputies attended the sessions Sunday, the keynote of the meeting being "a council without a program is like a ship without a rudder." A floor discussion of a complete and comprehensive program of council action and council activities extending over the year took place in the morning, and the afternoon was taken up with reports of committee chairmen.

Monologist Will Perform For A.A.U.W.

MRS. E. E. HAY, Oshkosh, who is considered second only to Cornelia Otis Skinner in the field of dramatic monologues, will present the program at the meeting of the Appleton branch of the American Association of University Women at 7:30 Wednesday night at Ormsby hall. She will read a monologue, "East is West," and then present several short character sketches.

Clow club will meet tonight instead of this afternoon, as incorrectly announced in Saturday's paper.

The meeting will take place at Miss Carrie E. Morgan's home, 100 N. Green Bay street, with Mrs. J. H. Farley reviewing "A Prairie Grove," by Donald Culcross Peattie.

Mrs. William Pickett will review "Wind Over Wisconsin" by August Derleth at the meeting of the General Review club Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. S. F. Darling, 704 N. Lemnawah street.

Beginning tonight, Appleton MacDowell Male chorus will rehearse each week at the Morgan school instead of in the city hall council chambers. Rehearsals begin at 7:30.

3 Persons Suffer Minor Injuries in Traffic Accidents

Five Automobile Crashes Reported in Outagamie County

Three persons suffered minor injuries in six traffic crashes in the county and vicinity over the weekend.

Herman Boyer and Arnold Parrett, New London, received minor cuts about their faces and hands when their car left Highway 54 at a curve a quarter-mile west of New London at 1 o'clock Sunday morning and crashed into the ditch. Parrett was driving the machine. The men were treated at Community hospital, New London.

Quentine Vandenberg, 19, route 2, Kaukauna, suffered a right shoulder injury when the car he was driving left Outagamie County Trunk 3 a mile west of Apple Creek and rolled over at 11:30 last night. Vandenberg told Jack Frenzli, county motorcycle officer, he was blinded by lights of an oncoming car.

Similar Accidents Two minor accidents of similar nature occurred in the city Sunday afternoon. Wilbur Ratz, 18, Bondel, stepped his car for an instant on W. College avenue, and his machine was struck in the rear by Ray Eshel, 22, 10 E. Eldorado street, according to a report given police. John McHugh, 38, 1303 W. Prospect avenue, stopped his car for an instant on W. Wisconsin avenue and was struck by a machine driven by Edward Kessel, 20, route 5, Oshkosh, police said.

Cars driven by George Rank, 64, 671 First street, Menasha, and Fred C. Reilen, 725 W. Packard street, Appleton, were damaged in a collision about 2:15 yesterday afternoon at Neenah. Rank was going west on Main street and Reilen south on Superhighway 41 when the machines collided. It was reported to Winnebago county police.

A cow in the Henry Court herd was killed in an accident involving a car driven by Samuel Hatch, Pittsville, on Highway 54 two miles east of New London at 10:30 last night. Hatch was driving west when the cow began crossing the road, according to Ronald Decker, county traffic officer, who investigated.

Accidents Claim Toll of 11 Lives During Weekend

Coroner Lauren Miller said they drove past another car which had stopped at the crossing. The couple recently resided at Rice Lake.

William was killed by a hit-and-run driver early Sunday while waiting for a street car. His body was carried 107 feet. Police who checked license numbers waited for Henry Piontek, 34, to come home. When he did, Sergeant John Buechler said, he started to run, but Buechler shot him in the shoulder. Piontek said he was not seriously wounded.

The Jenni boy was accidentally killed Sunday by the discharge of his father's gun as Jenni, Sr., was unloading it after a hunting trip, witnesses who included Ralph Kane of Green Bay, said. The party was hunting in Ozaukee county.

Olson was badly and fatally Saturday when gasoline he was putting in a tractor exploded. The accident occurred on his parents' farm at Blaine. Olson was commander of the Almond American Legion post.

The McGarvey boy was killed near Tomah Sunday while fox hunting with three companions. They said he poked a gun into a hole, but first, and the weapon discharged, killing him outright.

Shooting Is Fatal Backkard died at a Kenosha hospital as a result of injuries suffered Sunday when a companion's gun discharged accidentally while they were hunting west of Kenosha.

A head-on automobile crash on Highway 51 near Stoughton early Monday resulted in the death of Alfred Olson. Two other Stoughton men, Kenneth Burdette and Oscar Telle, were injured.

The Erdman child drowned in a tree and a half of water Saturday when it fell from a pier at Little Kaukauna. The child was wandering about in the arms of his parents, Mrs. and Mr. Albert Erdman.

Leon died at a Milwaukee hospital as a result of injuries he suffered Sunday when he fell from a tree.

The W. W. child was strangled accidentally while at play with his mother's brother Robert at Menasha. The boy was believed to have been held in a noose or something when the rope attached to a tree made four turns around the neck of the child.

High School Students To Get Reports Tuesday Report cards will be distributed to Appleton High school students Tuesday morning covering the first nine weeks of study. School authorities said today. Students and teachers will hold individual conferences for a day and a half Tuesday and Wednesday. School will be closed Thursday and Friday to allow teachers to attend the Wisconsin Education association convention at Milwaukee.

Births A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Steve Zebke, 2110 S. Jefferson street, yesterday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Karl Heckert, 1133 E. Eldorado street, yesterday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Halloween Aged Tradition; Modern Pranks are Docile In Light of Good Old Days

Everybody knows what happens on Halloween and a great many people have participated in the traditional pranks that attend the night of Oct. 31, but "why is Halloween" is not as familiar.

Early Christians set aside dates when every martyr for Christ was venerated. There were soon so many martyrs that they decided to hold one big festivity for all of them—Hallowmas or All Saints' day.

During the eighth century, Gregory III set the date at Nov. 1. Through the centuries, celebrants thought it advisable to keep vigil on the night before.

Quite independently, the Irish Druids made up their minds that Saman, lord of death, ordered wicked ed souls to come forth on the night of Oct. 31. Christians keeping vigil accepted the idea that witches and ghosts were apt to be at large on that evening and began wearing frightful masks to scare them away.

That, as far as can be determined, seems to be the origin of our gay, streamlined Halloween of 1938.

Pretty Tame Now Modern Halloween is pretty tame compared to the riotous evenings that many of Appleton's business men recall. A bit reluctantly ("after all, we're supposed to be sedate now") but with twinkles in their eyes, a number of the city's well known men today reminisced, for publication, on Halloween in the good old days.

Mayer Goodland was reluctant to talk about his escapades as a youth on Halloween night but finally did say he was involved a few times pushed over several of those small buildings with the slanting roofs all covered with vines and with a crescent moon or a star carved in the door.

Aidman Frank said: "When we were kids on the farm, we used to look forward to Halloween night for months. And then we did things sometimes that were pretty hard to live down. Like taking a farmer's milk wagon, hauling it a couple of miles and then hanging it up in the top of the tallest tree we could find."

F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director, who was reared in England and attended boarding school when he was a boy, remembered only that he used to leave the dormitory after hours on Halloween night and "go to the village and raise Cain."

That is, that's all he remembered for publication.

J. R. Gehrke, manager of the state employment service office, said he doesn't remember any prank of highly sensational nature, but that as a boy in Milwaukee he and his cohorts used to "pull a few tricks." The purse with the string attached, leaving the lucky person who noticed it groping in bewilderment, was one of Gehrke's favorite Halloween devices—and tick-tackling on windows kept the neighborhood in a mild state of frenzy.

Dan Steinberg, Sr., recalls with a wide grin the Halloween expedition that cost him and his young henchmen considerable embarrassment. The youths descended on a farm near Elkhart Lake, took a new plow apart, carried the pieces to the top of the barn, and re-assembled it. The farmer, a trifle on the mad side the next day, made the suspects do it all over again in reverse.

Judge Fred V. Heinemann said that warnings from his parents kept him from getting into trouble on Halloween nights. His companions, however, did their share of mischief, such as hauling away parts of wagons, fence gates and odd articles forgotten on home porches.

On one Halloween the boys put a cow in the belfry at the college and on this particular night Judge Heinemann was at home, he said.

Black Creek, Kimberly, Little Chute and Kaukauna.

A dinner will be held at 6:30 in the evening at the Conway hotel and wives of the various candidates will be present.

A parade will be held at 8 o'clock in the evening and every town, village and city in the county supported by Republicans from Oshkosh, Green Bay, Neenah, Menasha, Shawano and Clintonville is expected to be represented.

The candidates will speak, following the parade, at Lawrence Memorial chapel. Among the nationally known Republicans who will attend the evening meeting are E. J. Wood, Janesville, Republican national committee; Mrs. J. Thomas Sheboygan, Republican national committeewoman; Dr. F. Gulickson, Milwaukee, Republican state chairman; and Howard Greene, Genesee Depot.

Scheller Denies Motion to Adjourn Claim of $122,000

Hearing in Hatten Estate Case Set for Thursday Morning

Waupaca — Judge A. M. Scheller in county court this afternoon, denied a motion for adjournment of the hearing on a claim of W. H. Dick, Memphis, Tenn., against the estate of William H. Hatten, late New London lumberman, and set the hearing for Thursday morning.

Dick's claim is for $122,800 and alleged claims bring the total to about $300,000. Dick, who was in charge of the southern timber and plantation interests of the Hatten firm, asks $88,000 in back salary and $34,000 in deficiency claims on foreclosed property of the Tallahatchie Lumber company of which he was an official and Hatten president.

Counsel for the plaintiff asked for the postponement and produced an affidavit signed by Dick's physician which stated Dick should not attend the hearing today because of his physical condition. A postponement until May of next year or for a "reasonable period" was sought.

Counsel for the defense opposed postponement and produced an affidavit signed by an employee of a secret service firm which stated that the man had called at the Dick home last Friday. Dick was apparently in good health and was "chewing tobacco."

Favor High School Curriculum To Meet Student Requirements

is being organized to try out the proposed program next fall.

"If the recommendations of this committee are adopted, it will be one of the most revolutionary matters affecting education in this or any other state," John F. Waddell, assistant to Callahan, declared.

Average enrollment in the small high schools is 83, including 41 tuition pupils most of whom are farm children. Although most of the schools are located in rural areas,

183 of the 231 now offer no course in agriculture, and 175 no course in home economics, the report asserted, adding that high school curriculums should be "broad, rich and flexible."

"To draw village and farm boys and girls into a school is unsuited to the lives they will probably lead would be a tragedy," the report declared. "The curriculum must be appealing, and must be closely related to the out-of-town school life of the pupils while they are of school age."

Pleasant Weather Will Leave With October, Report

Unsettled Skies and Rain Are Predicted for This Area

The last of October also will mean the last of the spell of beautiful weather that has reigned over Appleton and vicinity—and the midwest in general—during the last week, the weatherman predicted today.

Unsettled skies and showers are due in this area tomorrow, the Milwaukee bureau reported today. Snow is expected in the northwest part of the state and in Northern Michigan.

Wintry weather from Canada headed toward the middle west today, the Associated Press reported. A minimum of two below zero was recorded last night at Chesterfield, Mo., along the northwest corner of Hudson Bay, which forecasters J. R. Lloyd, of Chicago, said was the season's first below-zero weather up there.

He said Illinois might escape the cold blast for the time being but predicted rain turning to snow tomorrow in northwestern Wisconsin, Upper Michigan, northern Minnesota and North Dakota, and cold rain in Nebraska, South Dakota and northwestern Iowa.

An official reading of 31 at Chicago municipal airport was the lowest in Illinois last night or early today. Wisconsin minima were: Madison, 38; Green Bay, 40; Milwaukee 42; LaCrosse, 44.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 57 and the lowest 41, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. The thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 57 at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Appleton Woman Asks $500 in Damage Suit

Mrs. Mary Vander Loos, 326 S. Summit street, asks $500 damages from Harvey Hansen, 322 S. Summit street, in an action which opened before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning.

Mrs. Vander Loos charges that Hansen struck her in an argument over a lot line on July 29.

Jury members are L. J. Sommers, Harry Koehnke, Charles S. Manville, Alva J. Carter, Herman Fredrick, A. J. Rohm, Adolph Jahank, Donald Rogers, Edward A. Schwandt, Charles Selig, Frank R. Dittmer and Art Schell.

Committees to Meet To Prepare Reports

The police and license committee of the common council will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in city hall to prepare its report to be submitted to the council Wednesday evening.

The judiciary committee will meet at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to consider several claims which have been filed against the city.

The building and grounds committee will meet at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon in city hall to prepare its report.

HEALTH QUERIES ANSWERED

Question: I am not at all well. I have pains every month, tried all remedies with no results. Will Chiropractic help me?
Mrs. S. L. J.

Answer: Some women continually bear the burden of serious distress and pain month after month. Few of them realize that their ailment is due, primarily, to a nervous disorder that can be corrected so that they may be free of system wracking cramps that make life miserable for them periodically. Most women can be strong, healthy and happy because their highly nervous complex organism readily responds to Chiropractic correctly applied. I may suggest that a large number of women, many of whom you know, who have been restored to health should be very good evidence that your case is no different from many others that came to this Clinic and are now well. Chiropractic as applied in this Clinic offers a safe and effective means of restoring normal nerve function and health is the natural consequence.

Question: Is Chiropractic good for head colds?
Mrs. J. H.

Answer: Yes, Mrs. J. H. Chiropractic is very effective in case of head colds. When the nerve supply to the head and throat is restored to normal so that the proper resistance may be supplied an adequate vital energy reaches the membrane through the medium of nerves, colds quickly will be eliminated. Close Square to Cars, Parking for Mummies' Parade

Halloween Celebration Will Begin at 7 O'clock Tonight

Soldiers square was closed to traffic and parking today to insure a cleared space for the Mummies parade, vaudeville and pavement dance which will be held there tonight.

The parade, which is being sponsored and promoted by the WPA recreational division, will begin at 7 o'clock tonight at the city fairgrounds, will proceed east on College avenue to Morrison street and then south to Soldiers square.

More than 700 youngsters have registered for the event which will be the high spot in tonight's Halloween entertainment. Spotlights were being installed today and the square will be as bright as day.

Motion pictures will be taken by a cameraman being sent here by the WPA state division.

Police to Lead Police on motorcycles and afoot will lead the procession which will parade before the reviewing stand at city hall. Mayor Goodland, the recreation committee of the council, the WPA advisory council and district and state WPA heads will be on the stand.

Prizes, donated by merchants, will be given to the youngsters with the most grotesque, the most beautiful, the funniest and the most original costumes.

Nine acts of vaudeville will be presented on the square with Daniel Sully as master of ceremonies. Mayor Goodland will award the prizes. Music for pavement dancing will be furnished by the William Novotny Concert orchestra of Oshkosh, a WPA unit.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Tiny tots come in for their daily beauty treatment too, especially when the weather is nippy. Their youthful skins are delicate and easily chafed when the thermometer drops or the winds take to howling.

Mother must realize that a chapped skin is irritating to the child and it is very natural for the child to scratch at its roughness and dryness, thus breaking the skin and leaving it open to any local infection, the germ of which is carried to the face by little hands and fingernail deposits. To prevent such a condition, the conscientious mother should take the precaution to lubricate her child's skin, after the morning face bathing, and apply a harmless cream to the tender lips.

Choose Bland Preparations

Quite naturally, mother's face creams and lotions are not meant for baby faces. They tend to be too astringent or too rich in their formulas, and might easily cause as much irritation as the brisk weather itself. But there are bland, non-alcoholic preparations in feather weight consistencies which were mixed with youthful skin in mind. One particularly is a lotion containing almond, honey and cucumber which has been tested on delicate skin textures and proved to be decidedly efficacious. The name of this I shall gladly give you upon your request, and I can also tell you about a colorless pomade in the shape of a lipstick which serves nicely in protecting baby lips from chapping and splitting. The ingredients are harmless, no matter if tiny tongues lick it away after application.

Talcum Also Prevents Chaffing

There are as many grades of talcum powder as there are of skin creams, and in buying one for the youngster of the family, be sure to get one which contains nothing allergic to the skin of your child. Tender, youthful skins, are frequently allergic to some perfumes, powdered starches of inferior quality or coloring.

You will find in shopping for a talc that the good ones are only a penny or two more than the poor ones and you are wiser in paying for the name of a reliable manufacturer. For less than half a dollar, there is a metal container of talc which was mixed especially to be a part of a wee-tot set, but which was so favorably received that you mothers may now buy it separately at small cost. After numerous testings there seems to be no ingredient in it which would irritate even the most tender baby's skin. So I can suggest it to you, wholeheartedly.

If you wish to know the name and prices of these baby skin aids, just send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope with your request. I am sure your local drug store or cosmetic counter carries them. Address me care of this paper.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you are over 21 years of age, be sure to test your maturity by this 5-point rating scale mentioned today. If you are only 60 per cent or 80 per cent a real man or woman, then be sure to move yourself into the 100 per cent class.

CASE L-155: Harold G., aged 35, is a former student of mine. He spent several years in newspaper work before going to college. He was brought up in a good Catholic family, but doesn't attend church at present.

Last week I received a long letter from him from New York City. "Something's wrong with me," he wrote, "so I'd like to see you for an afternoon's conference. I seem to be drifting and frittering away my time."

"Life has appeared mildly amusing to me, but I've never gone consistently deep enough to really know life. I feel as if I'd hung my clothes on the hickory limb but hadn't gone near the water."

"Now many ups — not many downs. Fed scrapings on the bottom — few visits to the clouds. Never getting very mad — never getting very glad."

"Few whites and blacks — a smear of grays. In short, mediocrity! I'll hop a plane for Chicago next Thursday and see if you can straighten me out."

DIAGNOSIS:

At a swimming pool did you ever observe some timid person who thought the water was icy. He diffidently dips his foot in, and then withdraws it, protesting about the cold and shivering for effect.

He hovers around, wasting maybe half an hour before he can muster courage to plunge in. Meanwhile, the others are having a fine time, for once we make the initial plunge, we don't notice the coldness.

So it is with many important decisions in life. If our intelligence and experience tell us that a certain action is desirable, then we should cease our futile and childish debating.

What is wrong with Harold? In the first place, he isn't married. His friends have gone ahead, taken the plunge, and now are rearing families. They are acquiring themselves like men.

What Is Success?

Many brides and grooms, even when the wedding march is being played, feel some last minute qualms. They almost wish they could back out. Yet they are ardently in love with each other. What is the matter? Just the swimming pool timidity and childish desire to avoid responsibility.

As soon as they are married, they forget all about those fears. Marriage is one of the five essentials that mark a mature adult, in contrast to the timid adolescent who kisses and runs away, or who dillydallies throughout life as a dilettante.

To accept the responsibilities of adulthood means, secondly, that intelligent people must link up with that organized body that is promoting morality and idealism; namely, the church. Harold had had a good Catholic training in childhood.

Now he is drifting, benefiting from the sacrifices and education of Christian parents, but not actively doing anything to pass on those same ethical ideals to anybody else. No wonder he feels that his life is futile and sterile, for that is exactly what it is.

The Marks Of A Real Man

Thirdly, a real man also is active in the political life of his generation. He votes at every election, and thus tries to improve his government as well as render tribute to it.

Opening Bid Of One Spade Most Logical

BY ELY CULBERTSON
LAST MONDAY'S QUESTIONS

Question 8: With both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

| | | | |
|----------|------|---------|------|
| North | East | South | West |
| 1 heart | Pass | 1 spade | Pass |
| 2 hearts | Pass | ? | ? |

You are South and hold:

AKJ952 ♥ Q2 ♦ AQS ♦ KJ3

What call do you make now?

Answer: Correct call is three no trump. You have an excellent hand (three and a half honor tricks including plus values) with strength in every suit, and balanced distribution. Any lesser bid would be absurdly conservative, and any stronger bid is unnecessary. Partner must be able to take voluntary action over three no trump if a slam contract is to be considered. (Twenty-five points demerit for three spades, 35 points demerit for two spades, 30 points demerit for 2 no trump, 40 points demerit for any diamond or club bid, 25 points demerit for any heart raise, 30 points demerit for any other bid, including 5 or 6 no trump.)

Question 9: With both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

| | | | |
|-----------|------|------------|------|
| North | East | South | West |
| 1 diamond | Pass | 1 no trump | Pass |
| 2 spades | Pass | ? | ? |

You are South and hold:

632 ♥ KJ8 ♦ J52 ♦ KJ84

What call do you make now?

Answer: Correct call is two no trump. North, by "reversing," has shown a good hand. You, South, hold more than you might have held for your first no trump response. You have real strength in the two unbid suits, and the fitting diamond jack. In short, enough to justify hope of a no trump game. (Thirty-five points demerit for passing, 20 points demerit for three diamonds, 40 points demerit for any other bid.)

This deal, taken from an important English match, proves that the tendency of some players to open with one club whenever they feel that a rebid may be embarrassing, is a very shortsighted policy. At one table, South worried himself sick about what he would bid if North responded to an opening spade bid with two diamonds, hence decided to get around this by bidding one club. North responded with one spade, and now East could enter the auction very comfortably. The result was that North South were forced to five diamonds (which would have been cold) and had to take a one trick defeat. At the other table, South made the supremely logical bid of one spade. West passed and North jumped to four spades. Now East, vulnerable, dared not enter the auction, and North-South stole the game.

One Must be Friendly in Order To Make and Keep His Friends

BY DOROTHY DIX

A young girl asks me if I will tell her how to make and keep friends. Well, the first rule for making friends is to be friendly yourself. We just naturally like those who like us and are drawn to those who show that they admire us and enjoy our society. Go more than halfway to meet people, and they will come to you.

Develop what salesmen call a good approach. Be easy to know. Don't expect strangers to make all the advances and work like coal-heavers for the privilege of getting acquainted with you. The world is too full of affable folks for us to bother with the stand-offish. You might have every charm and virtue, and nobody would ever find it out if you shut yourself up in your shell and waited to be pried out.

If you want to keep friendship alive you must cultivate it. Otherwise it will die of neglect. Show those you wish for friends little attentions. Give them unceasing proof that they are in your affections by sending them a newspaper clipping or a magazine or a box of some special candy that they like, and that will make them feel that you are thinking about them and remembering their tastes and habits. Never neglect writing letters of condolence and sending telegrams of congratulation. Many a friendship has been made by a 3-cent stamp and many a friendship lost for lack of one.

Don't be possessive in friendship. Because a girl gives you a place in her heart don't think that you own her body and soul and have a right to monopolize her. Don't be jealous of her other friends. Don't resent her going places and doing things without you. Don't make her afraid to give a dinner to which you are not invited or do anything which doesn't include you. Make your friendship something that adds to her pleasure instead of being a burden if you want it to last. And this goes double for a girl's friendship with a boy.

Don't be bossy. Friendship gives one many privileges, but not the right to be dictator and to deprive others of their personal liberty. So don't try to pick your friends' hats and dresses or tell them what color nail enamel to wear or how to have their hair cut. And, above all, don't be one of those pestiferous friends, who are always urging you to leave your own doctor and dressmaker for theirs, and join all the clubs to which they belong.

Don't make a graft of friendship. Don't think that because people are fond of you it gives you the right to use their cars as if they were your own, borrow their books without returning them, visit them unwelcome and ask favors of them. There is no meaner racket than using your friends for your own advantage, because you are taking advantage of the fact that they are in a position where they cannot defend themselves.

Don't get too intimate with your friends. There is no such preservative of friendship as a decent amount of formality and reserve, so don't be a back-door friend. Come in the front way. So shall you see just so much of her life as your friend wants you to see. And never tell even your most intimate friend all the secrets of your heart, for if you do the time will surely come when you will hate her for knowing too much and because of your own indiscretion. A wise man once said: "Treat every man as if he might some time be your enemy."

Put honey on your tongue if you want friends to swarm around you. No friendship can stand plain talking, so never be one of those who feel it their duty as a friend to tell a friend that she is getting fat, or that her little Johnny needs a spanking, or that her husband was seen out with his blonde stenographer.

And above all, in friendship give more than you expect to receive. Don't count what you give in the

AMERICAN OR EUROPEAN

Dear Mrs. Post: Which, in your opinion, is the wiser plan to consider when arranging to stay in a hotel which has both American and European rates? "A" says American is more practical and "B" says European is more satisfactory.

Answer: It depends entirely upon what you are going to do. That is, if you are going to a great city where you will be out sight-seeing most of the time, where you will go out to other places to lunch and dine, then the European plan is of course better, since you pay for only the meals you eat at your hotel. In the American plan hotel you pay so much a week, which rate includes twenty-one meals whether you eat all of them or none of them. Therefore if you are likely to eat all or most of your meals at your hotel, the American plan is decidedly the more practical because you know beforehand exactly how much your living expenses will come to.

Where To Place Carving Knife And Fork

Dear Mrs. Post: When the platter with the roast is brought to the table to be carved by the host, should the carving knife and fork be on the platter or have been put on the table beforehand?

Answer: They should have been put on the table beforehand and laid horizontally above the carver's plate or perpendicularly at the left of the forks at his plate.

Is Boy Too Young To Be Host

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a widow with two children—a girl of thirteen and a son of fifteen. Is my son old enough to sit opposite me and give the part of host? Or when I give a party—at which the children are present—shall I ask another man to sit opposite instead?

Answer: It is very good training and entirely proper that your son be allowed to feel that he is host.

Teacher Is Most Important Cog in Educational System

BY ANGELO PATRI

The new principal took charge of the old school. Filled with new ideas, trained in the newer schools, he set to work to give the children the best possible instruction in the best possible ways. He had the support of the Board of Education and the trustees. He got new books, new tools, all the equipment he needed, and joyfully started out to build his new scheme. At the conferences he held with the teachers he explained and taught until most of them knew what was wanted. Most of them tried to go along with him, eager to do their best for the children and trusting his leadership.

One teacher in the first year, neither heard nor felt the new ideas. To her the routine of reading and number work was the whole of school. The program called for twenty minutes of free play in the morning session for her group. Forced to take the children downstairs she lined them up in the yard and kept them reciting their sound syllables to be applied in reading. Five at a time were excused to go to the toilet and "be back on line promptly. They can't afford the time for play. They get excited, and sweaty, and dirty. Upsets their work for the morning." And that was that, for Miss Lulu was senior to the oldest teacher in the piece, which counts, like it or not.

The afternoon session called for drawing, cutting, coloring and allied activities in arts and crafts. When Miss Lulu got time she bustled them up to scissors, to one group, pencils to another, a pile of paper patterns to still another. "Now hurry. We have to get this done so we can review sight words. Row one trace patterns; row two, cut them out; row three, color the legs brown; row four color the bodies black; row six, do the heads in red with yellow eyes and collect at signal. As each group finishes its job, first child collect and count materials." Perfect? Yes.

"But, but," stammered the principal.

The Superintendent visited the school in his routine fashion. He heard each class read, had them do ten examples under a time limit, looked casually at the compositions stacked and labelled for the occasion, made marks in his little book and went his way. In due time his report was sent in to the principal and the Board of Trustees.

"Miss Lulu's class, as usual, headed the list with a perfect score in reading. No child missed a word. It gives me great pleasure to congratulate Miss Lulu on her perfect record of more than a quarter century. She is a credit to the school, and to her profession."

You could see Miss Lulu hanging out flags all over herself.

An idea needs all the support that authority, leadership and co-operation of those who must bring it to fruition, and educational ideas must lean hard on the class-room teacher, and the Authority who rates her. Most important of all concerned here, is the class-room teacher. Give her the approval, encouragement and power of spirit, and she will succeed, but bind her spirit and she must fail, taking the idea, and the children along with her.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Don't Marry The Man

By Jeanne Bowman

THE CHARACTERS

Kathleen Gregory: peppery red-haired member of the Gregory clan, who West immigrated to secure a right-of-way for The Golden Girl mine.

Donald MacDonald: young owner of The Stubbard Boy mine, hates the Gregorys.

Bridget: Kathleen's companion.

Yesterday: The son of a miner breaks his leg, the daughter is sick. Kathleen goes after the Gregory doctor, whose services are free only for mine accidents.

Chapter 15
Pent Up Wrath

JOHNNY was a good sport, though a very white lipped sport. He wished they'd let him remain where he was, or take him home.

Tears smarting her eyes, she went into the Gregory store for "Golden oranges." They didn't stock them, nobody ever bought citrus fruit, excepting lemons, in the winter. The MacDonald store had plenty. She had a basket filled with fruit, rode back to the mine with the doctor, picked up her car and drove back to the cot.

"These are for the little girl," she told the mother when she'd brought her the soothing news of Johnny's luck. "She seemed to like fairy stories of—"

"Where did you get them?" demanded the woman.

"At—" Kathleen hesitated.

"I know." The pathetic figure straightened and, hatred blazing from her eyes, "You've been fine, but get that fruit out of my house. I'll not poison a child of mine with MacDonald truck."

Kathleen stood appalled. This mother would let her child do without what she needed, sooner than accept anything purchased from her enemy. She had forgotten she had said she would sooner sleep in the street than spend another night in a MacDonald hotel. Her hatred was a veneer; this woman's hatred had been ingrained through three generations.

"I'll drive into Carstedt," she told the woman. "You'll accept fruit from her won't you? And I've other purchases I want to make."

"Would you?" the woman hesitated. "Would it be asking too much for you to take Grandmother MacBride with you? She's never been to Carstedt."

Kathleen set out for the nearest town with two guests. In the town she sat Grandmother MacBride, nearly smothered in blankets, her toothless mouth, wide with a happy smile. Beside her, brisk, alert and talkative was Grandmother Barkus, the old woman's cronies.

Carstedt reached, Kathleen spent half of her time shopping, the other half writing an air-mail letter to her father.

I demand you have every roof in Gregory repaired before snowfall.

I demand you release Doctor Cleveland from that anemic limitation. Give written permission for him to attend all Gregory people free of charge. He's more than willing.

This is enough for now, I'll tell her is of course too young to be host at a really formal dinner.

A Testimonial Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think the fact that one of our fellow employees is staying on to work should prevent our giving him a dinner to celebrate fifty years of service with this company? He started when he was young enough to go to grammar school and has gone the gamut of positions in this company to his present high executive post. Do you think we should give him a present on this occasion?

Answer: I think it would make him very happy. I should be invited to dine given by all of our employees. Then at the end of the meal present him with a silver bowl or plate or cup to which you all contribute, and on which all your names are engraved.

DAY OR EVENING

Here's excitement — a magic design that promises you not only an afternoon frock but also a party gown! Anne Adams has given Pattern 4926 "loads" of charm and chic, although she makes it easy to sew! Just picture yourself in the graceful daytime frock—its waist pointed up with shirring, its panels all soft folds, its neckline high and its sleeves daintily short! For this version, satin or matelasse crepe would be lovely. But if it's warmth you're after, you'll choose a new wool, and the long-sleeved style. Then, for the very alluring holiday-dance dress, pick lustrous silk (you might even have the panels contrast—a slimming way to use color!).

Old Gardener Says:

Rhubarb is easily forced in the cellar after the first of the year and will give a good supply of what is often called pieplant with but little effort. It is a curious fact, however, that rhubarb roots need to be frozen hard before they are forced. This means that they should be dug before the ground is frozen hard and left outdoors in a pile until very cold weather comes. Then they can be moved to indoors and forced a few at a time in boxes of earth in a warm cellar or behind the kitchen range. If the cellar is kept dark, the stalks will be almost white.

My Neighbor Says—

Don't twist, bend or tie the so-called cord attached to your electric iron. It is not a cord, but two bundles of wires.

When only very fresh bread is available for sandwiches, chill the bread as long as possible in the refrigerator. Then use a sharp knife to cut thin slices. It is best to spread both sides of bread with butter, since the butter serves as a coating and prevents the filling from soaking into the bread. Soften butter used for sandwiches by creaming it with a fork. Melting the butter makes it too greasy.

For making colored suzars to decorate cookies add a little fruit coloring to a small amount of sugar sprinkled on a shallow dish. When the sugar and coloring are well blended spread the mixture in a thin layer on the cookie after the cookie is baked. Colors applied before baking are apt to disappear during the cooking process.

TAXES vs JOBS

THE connection between making a living and—taxes—is about as direct as between a buzz saw—and a board through which it is cutting.

In certain Industries, taxes almost equal salaries and wages and there is such a complicated system of making reports for all these different kinds and types of taxes that, at times, it costs as much to prepare and defend these reports as the taxes themselves amount to.

Now—WHAT DOES THIS MEAN TO US? We cannot work unless we are paid—if money that could either pay a higher wage or give more jobs has to go for taxes—then—there is where it hits us. Remember the TAXES MUST BE PAID or the Government seizes the business.

Every dollar the Government spends in so-called "political jobs" is a TAX DOLLAR that if left in the business would have given jobs in the first place. Further—if taxes were not so high and government spending were not constantly increasing to make still higher taxes—PRIVATE CAPITAL could invest in new industries—Thus, every new industry created would give not only new jobs but many other industries with which it dealt would have their business increased and new employment would be created all along the line.

The Automobile industry is only about 30 years old. It was started before the days of our Income—Sales—Undistributed profits—and most of the other multitudinous tax burdens that are throttling business and business investment. AT THAT TIME THE GOVERNMENT DEBT WAS ABOUT—1/40th—OF WHAT IT IS NOW AND TAXES AND BUSINESS INCENTIVE WERE IN REASONABLE RATIO. The development of this industry alone has given millions of jobs directly in its factories and sales outlets and further has made almost twice as many jobs elsewhere in business with which it dealt.

Gasoline just twenty years ago sold for about thirty cents a gallon. With the development of the automobile a whole new consuming world was found as well as a whole new tax field to levy in. Thus, today with an enormous increase in demand, the oil companies are selling a far better product at about one-half that price, even though TAXES on gasoline have risen from less than one cent a gallon to a national average of five cents. Think—what could be paid in higher wages or given in new jobs if it were not for the heavy tax burden many businesses have to carry.

Instead of simplifying our tax system and economizing in Government to give business reasonable investment profit incentive and opportunity to expand their factories and give more jobs or higher wages, the conditions have been getting steadily worse. Investing capital has almost ceased to exist, for taxes take a large percentage of profits and the chances of losing money are greater in most cases than of making profits.

Thus, it is easy to see why there are not jobs enough to go around and even the ones we have are insecure. THE ONLY WAY THAT THIS CAN BE STOPPED IS FOR YOU TO TELL YOUR GOVERNMENT REPRESENTATIVE HOW YOU FEEL ABOUT IT AND WHEN YOU VOTE CHOOSE THE MAN TO REPRESENT YOU WHO WILL KEEP HIS PROMISES AND DO SOMETHING DEFINITE ABOUT THIS PROBLEM WHEN HE IS IN OFFICE.

Government spending is what makes taxes; cut needless expenditures—reduce deficits—and we can cut taxes!

RIPON—This is not the story of just another Lawrence-Ripon football game. It is the story of one which for thrills probably never has been equaled in the long past and won't be for many a fall in the future. The score was 14 to 13 for Lawrence, but for sheer closeness the difference should be reduced to one-one thousandth of something.

For the final effort of the bitter struggle came with the ball in the air, the report of the timer's gun fading into an echo. The ball started down and nestled partially into the arms of Larson, Crimmon end, when there was a thud of body against body, the rubbing of canvas against canvas, the snap of ball against harness and the ball bounded away an incomplete pass.

Occurs on Goal Line
The play occurred on the goal line and had the receiver hung on to Ken Buesing, Viking back, missed in his efforts, Ripon would have scored the winning touchdown. As it was a half dozen stumbling, tired Vikings picked Buesing up off the turf and hugged him, a big Lawrence crowd went wild and a larger Ripon homecoming throng was plunged into the depths of gloom.

And wherever Lawrence and Riponites gather for the next year they'll talk about that game at length, argue its merits and never will a Riponite admit the better team won and never will a Lawrence concede so much as a blade of grass.

In Ripon the Vikings found the toughest team they have faced this year, or at least a team which knew every Lawrence weakness and which did the most to capitalize on them. It also was a team which had a great back in Sveto Kremar, Milwaukee youth, who introduced himself with more than a 60-yard run which, luckily for Lawrence, was called back because of a Ripon penalty. He also showed himself as a passer the like of which Lawrence could not equal, who plucked with the unerring skill of an Arnie Herber during his best year.

The Crimmon line and backs also gave Lawrence something to think about by holding out Vikings who had gotten through other lines with ease to harass passers and break up interference. Ripon's height enabled it to grab passes that in other games Lawrence had knocked down.

Novakofski Vike Threat

Lawrence was forced to match the Crimmon with only the running of Obba Novakofski and some right good punting by Art Crimmon. It was Obba's return of punts for 15 to 25 yards that kept the Vikes well within Ripon territory, and it was his skirting the ends that enabled the squad to threaten every few minutes and once rip off a 49-yard gallop for a marker.

Kaemmer smashed through the center of the Crimmon line for off needed gains and busted his way through for four yards. The few Lawrence passers saw Buesing, Crawford and Nystrom the receivers with the latter the most consistent catcher.

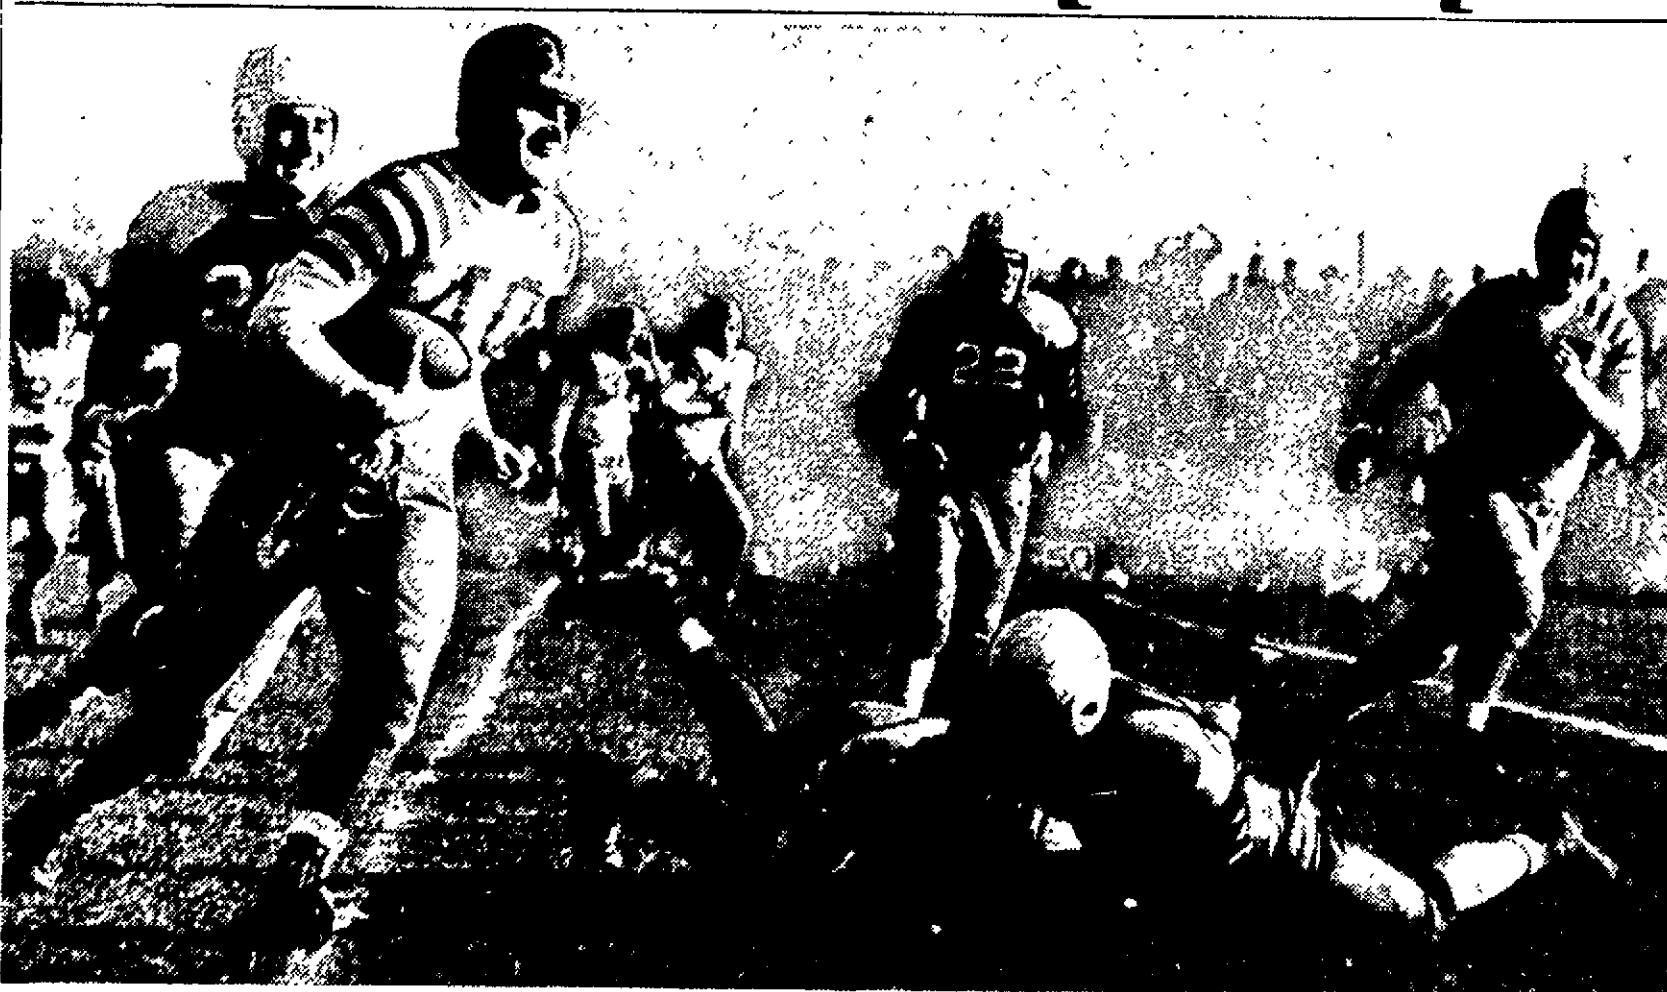

Other than that, the game was the story that has been repeated so often this year by Lawrence, a line working a whole game with only one relief, and with two backs plugging away for 60 minutes, one for a few minutes less and the fourth relieved only long enough to allow him to come to after a hard job. There also were several of those fellows who had injuries that kept them from doing far from their best, especially the two tackles who found weak ankles don't allow you to take off with alacrity and a center who found an injured foot doesn't help much on pass defense.

Breaks Come Fast

The breaks of the game also played as important part with first one team having an advantage and then the other. There were several fumbles and Lawrence scored as a result of one; each team blocked a punt, and several Ripon passes were partially knocked down only to be caught by other Redmen before they hit the ground. At times the breaks shifted from one team to the other so fast there never was time to realize on them.

Lawrence received to open the game, and played the entire first period in Ripon territory. The Redmen had the ball only three times during the period and only once managed to get beyond the 20-yard line.

Lawrence lost eight yards on its first running play and punted on fourth down into the end zone. Ripon took the ball on the 20, failed to gain and punted. On second down Buesing passed to Crawford

LAWRENCE BEATS RIPON, 14-13

Lawrence and Ripon college football teams staged one of the tightest battles of their long history Saturday at Ingalls field, Ripon, with the Vikings managing to cop a 14 to 13 decision. The game ended with the ball still in the air and Ripon almost completing a pass on the goal line. The game featured two star performers, Sveto Kremar for the Redmen and Albert Novakofski for the Vikings. In the top picture, Kremar, No. 40, has started on one of his several gallops of the day with Dick Garvey tailing him. On unidentified Viking and a Redman are on the ground in the fore while Harness, No. 25, Ripon tackle, is moving over to help in the play, followed by Galke, No. 22, Lawrence guard. But while Kremar's running was a big part of the Ripon attack, it was his passing that almost left the Vikings on the short end of the score.

U. W. Will Have Great Number Of Fox Valley, Northeastern Gridders on Squad Next Year

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — By next season the Fox River valley and the Northeastern Wisconsin conferences will have contributed more than three shares to the University of Wisconsin football department. Coach Russ Rippel revealed today as he designated two Fox river valley yearlings and several others who graduated from the Northeastern Wisconsin circuits as eligible timber for the varsity next fall.

Rippel, freshman mentor at the state school, reiterated Coach Stuldreher's gratification that young athletes from the Appleton area are again turning to the University of Wisconsin when they begin thinking about college athletic careers. "We can use still more of them," Rippel commented in discussing this year's crop from that area.

Kolbus Was East Star
Besides such varsity members as Gage and Tornow from Green Bay, Weigandt from Oshkosh, Brodhagen from Fond du Lac, and Rippe from Bonduel, the university practice field this year contains an unusual number of freshmen who are looking hopefully toward the varsity corner after finishing high school careers in the valley and vicinity.

Among them is Don Kolbus of Green Bay East, giant guard. Kolbus' presence on the squad this fall particularly gratifies Rippel and his associates because the young man came to Madison despite attractive offers from other schools, notably Fordham in New York.

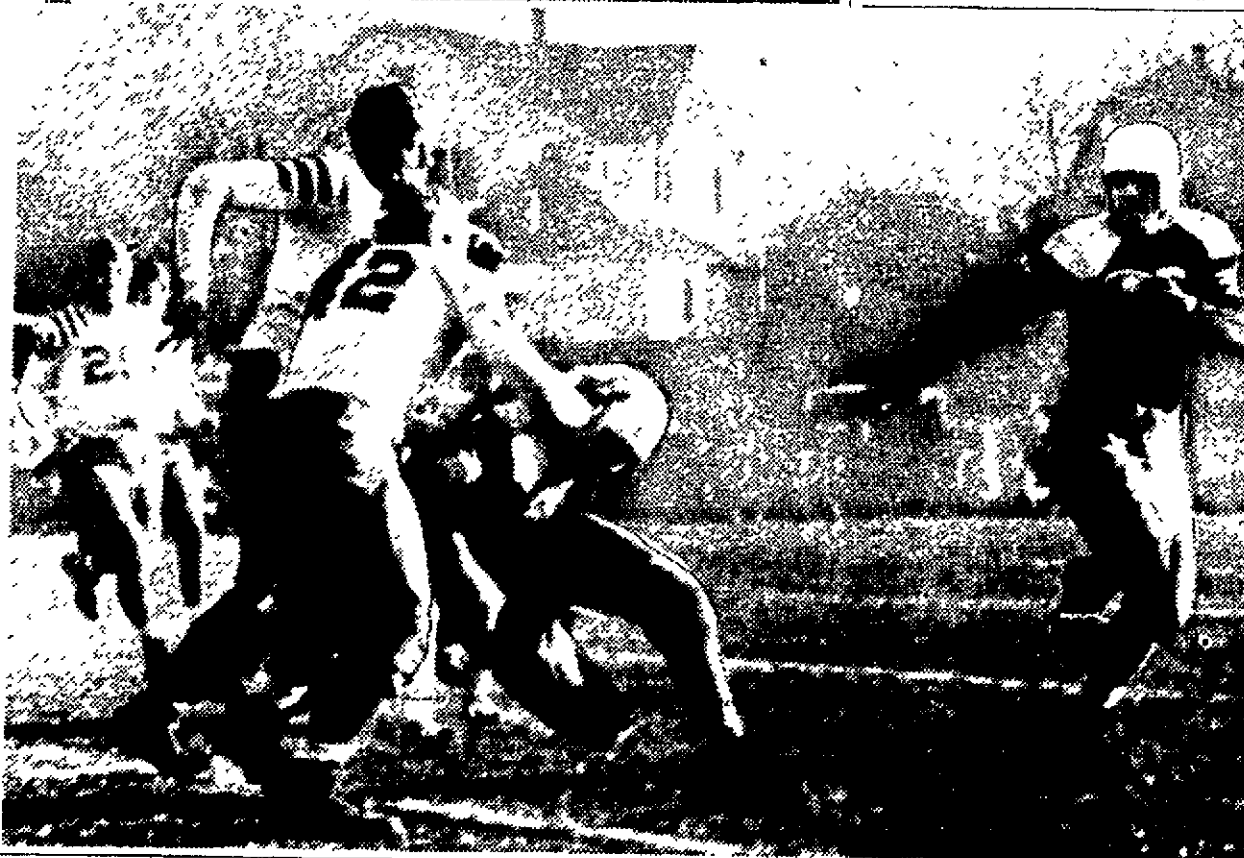

Together with Howard Kaewer of Oshkosh and Russell Novak of Manitowish, Kolbus is regarded by Rippel as most certain to be turned over to Head Coach Stuldreher when he finishes his freshman year on the campus. Novak is a back, and has shown possibilities which were not immediately apparent in this fall in the last few days of practice. "We're going to pay more attention to him from now on," his coach comments. Kaewer is a tackle, and considered to be extremely promising. "Outstanding" is the way the athletic department experts characterize him after watching him in action in recent weeks.

Another valley conference product is Bob Last of Oshkosh, who is playing at center. At the same time the smaller schools in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, both divisions, are well represented. There is Peter Biehm of Sturgeon Bay, who aspires to a tackle berth on the varsity some day and is trying hard to get there.

Berken, Berndt Survive
Conrad Berken of West De Pere is remembered as a participant in many Northeastern conference games, and he is now performing as fullback on one of the freshman squads under Rippel's practiced eye. A former foe, Fritz Berndt of Shawano, is playing tackle with him. Both survived recent slashings of the freshman roster, which now stands at about 100.

Several representatives of the valley regions reported earlier in the season but have since dropped out for various reasons. Among them is Ed Winkelhauser of Oshkosh, an end, who quit to devote more attention to his classroom subjects, but who is expected to be back in a uniform next spring. From his performances this fall, he can be pretty sure of an invitation at that time.

Another is John Reed, one of the finest backs and handiest basketballers ever to show for Shawano high school. Reed reported for a couple of days, even had a job provided for him by the university athletic department, and then disappeared suddenly without explanation. He is reported to be back in Shawano.

Lawrence Frosh Eke Out 6-0 Win Over Neenah High

Gallop All Over Field but Manage to Score Only Once

BY TOM MASTERSON

NEENAH—Although Lawrence college frosh figuratively ran Neenah off the gridiron in a non-conference game here Saturday afternoon, the yearlings from Appleton scored only one touchdown, waiting until the final quarter to clinch the 6 to 0 victory.

Needless to say, the young Vikings rolled all over their high school opponents, and when they got down to business, it didn't take them long to shove the pigskin over the final mark.

If the Frosh had Neenah back on its heels for the entire 60-minute contest, why didn't they score more touchdowns? Because Lawrence actually played in reverse. Drive after drive, interspersed with long runs, hard plunging, completed passes, were checked within the shadows of the uprights by the Lawrence freshmen themselves, via the penalty rule.

Lawrence was penalized a total of 85 yards, while Neenah failed to draw a penalty. The Vikings netted 13 first downs to Neenah's five.

Family Feud
Few of the small group of spectators watching the booster game realized there was a family feud taking place on the gridiron. Robert Staffeld, a Neenah high school gridman, was opposing his elder brother, Alvin, a member of the Lawrence contingent. There were other former Neenah high school players on the Lawrence squad, Clyde Coenen, a guard, and Harold Borenz, center. Staffeld is a tackle.

Although Lawrence was plagued by penalties, it played a good game, outclassing Neenah in practically every department except kicking. Co-Captain Warren Ketterman's punts worked the Rockets out of dangerous positions all afternoon. The Rockets took few chances. Not setting any place through the line, the Rockets did resort to passing, but all the passes were short, heaved just over the line of scrimmage and were well covered. Neenah played an exceptionally good defensive game and on one occasion actually threatened to score.

Lawrence scored shortly after the opening of the final quarter, the drive starting in the third quarter. After pushing from their 36 on the kickoff into Neenah's territory, collecting a first down on the way, the Frosh were drawn back into their

Doc Spears, Wayne U. Coach Tangle in the Dressing Room

DETROIT—The jolly Dr. Clarence W. Spears, whose grin covers a vast expanse but whose scowl can be black as a goal line fumble, was back in football's limelight today.

The "good doctor," as he was known to Minnesota, Oregon and Wisconsin where he coached teams with pile-driving offensives, paid a little call at the Wayne University dressing room Saturday after his Toledo University eleven had thumped Wayne, 39 to 20.

Accounts differed, but the situation had reached such proportions today that Coach Joe Gembris of Wayne, the other leading man in the dressing room by-play, said he feared Wayne and Toledo might have to quit playing one another.

It seems Spears didn't admire the work of Saturday's officials. Spears, ever the man to stand up for his rights, said "someone" took a punch at him after Gembris had asked him to leave the room, and "I departed after swinging back."

"But I didn't hit anybody," he said. From Gembris:

"That's so. He started arguing about the officiating. So I said, 'Well, Doc I don't want anything to do with you.'"

Gembris said he held Spears' arm to lead him to the door "and then he swung at me."

"I jumped back and put up my guard," Gembris said, "and then one of the freshmen coaches jumped in and let him have it. He swung back and then we separated them. Weiss, hb, Wis. 3 2 0 0 12 and got him out. I guess both of them got in-one blow apiece."

Kimberly Ties Two Rivers, 6-6

Holy Name Gridders Count in 1st Period of Homecoming Game

KIMBERLY — The Holy Name grade school gridders tied the strong St. Lukes team of Two Rivers, 6 to 6, before several hundred rooters at the Holy Name homecoming at the ball park Sunday afternoon. Kimberly scored in the first period when Cecil Gaffney, fullback, raced around his own right end for a touchdown.

The vicious tackling and blocking of the Holy Name midgets kept their heavy opponents deep in their own territory until late in the last period when a pass over the line to Kriztzeke was good for a touchdown after a run of 47 yards.

St. Lukes is coached by H. St. Pierre and the team has not lost a game this year in conference play. It was expected to run over its smaller opponents. The small backfield of Kimberly had speed and had the large crowd cheering as the line opened holes for it to go through for large gains.

But the midgets felt they scored a moral victory in holding St. Lukes to a tie.

MADISON — The University of Wisconsin football team went into a week of extensive drill in preparation for the outstanding Big Ten game on next Saturday's schedule against Northwestern's leading Wildcats.

The Badgers, victors over Indiana in their homecoming tilt by a 6-0 score, came through Saturday's battle unscarred. Coach Harry Stuhldreher announced today that Vince Gavre, senior quarterback from Port Edwards, will be acting captain for the Wildcat tussle.

The Badgers, in the Hoosier game, were none too impressive but had the spark to punch the ball across paydirt land when the occasion arose.

Weiss Is Outstanding

Wisconsin tallied in the second quarter. Gordon Gile, Shorewood end, recovered a Hoosier fumble on the Badger 30. Howie Weiss, Fort Atkinson, fullback, acting captain and one of the outstanding men on the field, smashed through for 30 yards in two plays. He then picked up five over center. Roy Bellin, Whitefish Bay halfback, tossed a pass to Al Lorenz, of Chicago, an end, who was pulled down on the 12. The Hoosier defense stiffened but after several attempts, Gavre raced around right end and crossed the goal line. Lynn Hovland's point placement was wide.

Although Indiana had 12 first downs to Badgers' 8, Wisconsin piled up 209 yards as compared with 107 for Coach Bo McMillin's eleven. The Hoosier passing game was definitely "on" and they completed 12 out of 20 attempts for a total yardage of 138.

Indiana Threatens

The game was never over until the final whistle sounded. McMillin's "por little boys," were knocking at the Badger's door continually in the final period. The game ended with the pigskin resting on the Wisconsin 5 yard stripe.

Joe Nicholson and Tim Bringle, Indiana halfbacks, shot pass after pass for long gains. Wisconsin, with Bill Schmitz, Madison left halfback, on the sidelines, was not very successful with its pass offense, completing two out of five, for 17 yards. Pass interceptions and fumbles ruined their chances.

Wisconsin's line played a bang up game, stopping Captain Paul Graham, quarterback, and Edwin Clasen, halfback, despite the loss of Ralph Moeller, Watertown left end, in the first quarter, and Jack Murray, Plymouth, Pa. center, because of injuries. Murray, who saw little action, will be ready for the Wildcat game which will be Moeller's Stuhldreher Pleaded Coach Harry Stuhldreher was pleased with his boys' play. He was especially happy over the coverage of punt receivers and the downfield tackling. The blocking also was considerably better than seen heretofore.

Stuhldreher said after the game: "It was a nice tonic for the boys. We gained a lot of valuable experience. Fans are inclined to underestimate this Indiana club. McMillin's boys have been operating under handicaps all year. They'll get a couple of breaks and give somebody a headache."

McMillin paid the Badgers a fine tribute after the contest by stating that Wisconsin was the hardest tackling team he has ever seen.

Practice this week will be on pass defense and down field blocking.

Peterson Stars as Little Chute Bows to Invaders

LITTLE CHUTE—Kaukauna Merchants downed the strong Flying Dutchmen squad, 9 to 7, in a stiff battle before a record crowd here Sunday afternoon. Peterson spearheaded the Kaukauna attack with sensational passing running and kicking while McCormick smashed through the Dutchmen's line when yardage was needed.

Little Chute was helpless in the face of Peterson's passes to Neitz and the Dutchmen goal line was threatened many a time. Neitz took a pass from Peterson to score in the second quarter and Mathes plunged over for the extra point. Kaukauna was credited with two points when Leo Lamers picked up a punt on his own 5-yard line and ran backwards to get around Marty DeBruin but couldn't make the grade.

The Dutchmen tallied their lone score on a pass from Amy Hammen to Johnny Black from the 2-yard line after Les Helf had scampered 45 yards. Block converted with a perfect boot. Another Little Chute touchdown was nullified after Johnny Black raced 30 yards because the Dutchmen were offside on the play.

Five First Downs

The first quarter saw Little Chute marching up the field on five first downs with Al Boots, Lamers and M. Hartjes carrying the ball. With the ball on the 10-yard stripe, a Dutchman was caught clipping and the ball went back to the 25-yard line. Two passes were incomplete and Kaukauna took the ball on downs. Kaukauna started out fast with Peterson tossing a perfect 30-yard pass to Eiling. McCormick took another pass to the Little Chute 40 where the Dutchmen stiffened and Peterson punted out on the 11.

Boots returned to the Kaukauna 40-yard line after an exchange of punts and Peters threw two long passes which fell incomplete. Peterson punted to Hammen on the Dutchmen's 18 who fumbled and McCormick recovered for Kaukauna. A place kick was blocked and the ball was downed on the Chute's 40. Hartjes fumbled and George Block recovered for Kaukauna.

Peterson skipped through tackle for 20 yards and a long pass was almost good for a touchdown but T. Maas knocked it down as the quarter ended.

Kaukauna Stopped

George Block passed to Peterson as the second quarter opened and Kaukauna advanced to the 8-yard line. Neitz took a shovel pass to the 1-yard marker and Block plunged but was stopped with 1 foot to go. The Dutchmen threw Neitz for a 2-yard loss on the final try. Al Boots powered a 50-yard punt to take the Chuteurs out of a hole.

Peterson bulletted a pass to Neitz for 12 yards and followed with another heave over the head of Ted Maas to Neitz who crossed the goal line. Mathes plunged for the extra point and Kaukauna took a 7 to 0 lead.

The Chuteurs failed to gain and Boots kicked to the Kaukauna 40. McCormick was tossed for a 4-yard loss but took a pass for 12 yards. Kaukauna punted to the Little Chute 10-yard line and Donner recovered after the ball hit a Chute back. Peterson plunged to the 2-yard line as the half ended.

Kauluna received and a quick kick out the ball on the Little Chute 15. G. Hartjes and Boots picked up two first downs but the attack faltered on the 40 and Boots punted to the Kaw 30. Hammen intercepted a pass on the 40 and Boots and Hartjes picked up another first down. Play was rough and Neisen and Jansen were ejected from the battle for scrapping. Boots punted out of bounds on the 8-yard line.

Kaukauna Scored Safety
McCormick smashed through for 15 yards and Peterson tried the line as the third quarter ended. Lamers lost nine yards on an end

CLEVELAND, O. — (AP) — The Green Bay Packers, leaders of the National Pro Football league's Western division, snapped the three-game winning streak of the Cleveland Rams, 28-7, yesterday before 18,483 fans, the largest crowd in Cleveland pro football history.

The Packers made all four touchdowns on passes. Three of them were scored by Don Hutson, former Alabama star, and the fourth by Clark Hinkle, all-league fullback.

Cleveland made its touchdown in the third period when Jim Benton intercepted Arnie Herber's pass on the Packer 25 and lateraled to Jules Alonzo for the six points.

The Packers completed 8 of 19 passes to gain 133 yards and the Rams connected on 9 in 29 for 104 yards. The Rams made 11 first downs to 9 for Green Bay, but gained only 34 yards rushing against 118 for the victors.

The victory gave the Packers a record of six wins and two losses. The lineups:

HINKLE GAINS SIX YARDS FOR PACKERS

Manitowoc Wins Over Appleton In Valley Play

Manitowoc got a break late in the first quarter when the ball fouled off Swamp's foot as he was kicking, going out of bounds on Appleton's 47. The kick was good for little more than five yards.

The Ships shook Morris, right half, into the clear around left end and the speedy halfback, running with Appleton men all around him, went on down to the 10-yard line. The next series of plays were among the most exciting of the day.

Buesing Gets Fumble
Buesing recovered a Manitowoc fumble and Fitz went back to kick. Blinded by the sun, he dropped the pass from center but recovered on the 6-yard line. He finally lifted one out of the end zone to McDonnell, who was knocked down on Appleton's 44. McDonnell smashed through for eight yards and then Becker, Terror center, scooped up another Manitowoc bobble on his own 35.

Fitz, on the first play, retreated to about his own 20-yard line to pass. Manitowoc forwards rushed him and he side-stepped them, running off to the left. With the pack after him, he suddenly reversed his field, darted towards the right and as he neared the sidelines, threw a long pass to Reider. The left end was standing with three of his men in sight, but he dropped the ball.

Fitz then booted to midfield. McDonnell dashed 17 yards on the first play and was tackled on Appleton's 29. Pat then tossed another pass to Knauer, who was stopped on the 18. The "Two Macks" began an onslaught on the Terror line, with McDonnell blasting over from the 1-yard line. Morris kicked goal and the score was 13-0.

Power Drive
It was in the third quarter that Manitowoc power and speed was most impressive. Starting from their 33-yard line, where Jirivoke was stopped after a 23-yard return of the kickoff, the Ships powered down the field for their third touchdown. McDonnell crashing over from the 1-yard line to climax the drive.

During this 77-yard campaign, McDonnell broke into the open for a 32-yard jaunt around right end and threw a pass to Schmidt for a 6-yard gain. Line plunges and off tackle gains by McDonnell and Morris did the rest.

Midway in the fourth quarter, after Appleton had counted its first touchdown, Manitowoc, substitute Knell, reserve end, the receiver ran to the 4-yard line before tackled. Levensky ploughed over for the Ships' fourth and last touchdown. Heimritz blocked Hudka's attempted placement and the score stood at 25-7. Appleton adding its second marker a few moments before the game ended.

South
Tennessee's 14-6 conquest of Louisiana State left the Vols far in front in the Southeastern conference race with Tulane and Georgia the only other squads without conference defeat. Tulane, 27-0 victor over Mississippi State, has won one and tied one. Georgia starts its conference schedule against Florida, trounced 33-0 by Boston College.

While Tennessee takes it comparatively easy against Chattanooga, a heavy conference schedule sends Louisiana State against Alabama, 26-6 conqueror of Kentucky. Vanderbilt, 13-7 victor over Georgia Tech, against Sewanee; and Georgia Tech against Kentucky.

The Southern conference crown virtually was clinched by Duke when the Blue Devils, one of the country's mightiest defensive machines, topped North Carolina, 14-0. Duke's goal line still is uncrossed. Virginia Military and Clemson have outside chances of figuring in the title as both are unbeaten within the conference but played a 7-7 draw against one another.

V. M. I. and Wake Forest spilled 7-0 by Clemson, while Clemson meets non-conference George Washington whose perfect record was ruined by Mississippi, 23-0. Other conference games include North Carolina and Virginia Tech, and Citadel and Richmond. South Carolina plays another intersectional.

New York—(AP) — Football enters the critical November phase of a brilliant season with a dozen teams still eligible for the national championship sweepstakes.

Rank them as you choose at this point but the undefeated and untied list of major outfits includes Pitt, Dartmouth and Georgetown in the east; Tennessee and Duke in the south; California and Santa Clara in the far west; Texas Christian and Texas Tech in the Southwest; Notre Dame, Iowa State and Oklahoma in the Midwest.

National championship speculation also must include Northwestern's Wildcats, conquerors of Minnesota but held to a scoreless draw by Ohio State. Boston college, Villanova and Utah likewise have escaped defeat but have been tied.

After last Saturday's extraordinary list of gridiron "natural", never hitherto equalled in October, there is a noticeable falling off in the class of this week's program. High spots of the slate include:

East
Pitt, the unquestioned leader after its 21-point fourth period rally that trounced Fordham, 24-13, will need to fight off a natural let-down in its annual clash with Carnegie Tech, Dartmouth, whose high-gear offensive brushed aside Yale, 24-6, has a breather in little Dickinson, while Georgetown, conqueror of Temple, 13-0, plays Bucknell. Of the other unbeaten eastern outfits, Boston college and Villanova both will need to tread warily against intersectional rivals. The Eagles play Indiana, which held Wisconsin to a 6-0 count, while Villanova takes on Auburn.

Topping the intersectional list, however, is Notre Dame's meeting with Navy at Baltimore. The Irish spotted Army a touchdown in the first few minutes of play and then won out on a fourth-period drive, 19-7. Navy, sluggish for three periods, was held to a scoreless tie by Penn despite a strong finish. Harvard, led to a 26-7 victory over Princeton, by Torbie McDonald, plays Chicago at Fordham. Fordham lacks St. Mary's Gaels; Manhattan faces North Carolina State, and Columbia, well-shackled by Cornell, 23-7, meets Virginia.

After absorbing a 33-6 beating from Penn State, Syracuse squares away against its greatest rival, Colgate, stopped cold by Holy Cross, 21-0. Holy Cross, meanwhile, plays Temple. Rutgers and Princeton, who began all this football business, renew an ancient rivalry in Rutgers' new stadium in New Brunswick. Yale takes on Brown while Army cashes off against Franklin and Marshall.

Middle West
Northwestern's stunning 6-3 upset of Minnesota left the Wildcats tied for the Big Ten lead with Ohio State whose Buckeyes leisurely mopped up New York University, 32-0. Northwestern plays Wisconsin next while Ohio State takes on Purdue, held to a scoreless tie by Iowa's Hawkeyes. Iowa may be the innocent victim of Minnesota fury in the remaining Big Ten game of the week. Michigan plays host to Penn after wading through Illinois, 14-0.

In the big six, Oklahoma, easy 26-6 victor over Tulsa, plays Kansas State and will have a chance to tie Iowa State for the lead. Kansas, engineer of an upset in a 27-7 beating to Kansas State, meets Nebraska, stopped 13-10 by Paul Christman and the Missouri Tigers. Missouri may be overpowered by Michigan State, which surrendered to Santa Clara by a single point, 7-6. Iowa State, after edging out Marquette, 7-0, plays its Iowa rival, Drake.

Dozen Grid Teams Still are Eligible For National Title

Pittsburgh Continues Top Ranking: Northwestern Moves Up

Outlanders in New York Never Do Much for the Overall Labor

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Yes, and another thing about them is that you never see them doing any of the really heavy work of building up the place. You don't see them digging tunnels and subways or laying brick, or anything like that, or bringing up their children to perform such toil. They come here as green as grass, most of them without visible means of support and claiming to want work, but they are too good to do all right they start pushing their way into the clubs and the better neighborhoods. And not all but most of them want to be known as night-club celebrities and bon vivants and see their picture in the society sections or in the rotogravures showing them at the Stork or "21" with a champagne cooler by the table.

They consume plenty, but if you ever suggest to one of them that he ought to go out and be a farmer and produce something he will laugh at you as though you were crazy. Or if you crack that they ought to teach their kids to be farmers or laborers, instead of white collar people, it is the same. It is true that they sometimes send their kids back to homeland to college, but that is just for clannishness again—the old fear of being assimilated to New York, the fear of becoming too eastern, although the kids have been born and brought up in New York and enjoyed its advantages and superior ease of living.

But, whether they go back to school, back to the scenes, customs, inconveniences and all that the parents were so glad to escape from when they were young, or go to eastern schools, they aren't fixing to go in for heavy toil when they get through. God forbid that they should even have to do any of the rough jobs!

They complain because Others Do The Same Thing
Yet the parents will sit around and knock other people for avoiding manual labor and say, "How many farmers do you see among them?" and complain because these others, too, keep alive their old traditions and folkways and try to give their children the kind of education and enough stake in life to make it unnecessary for them to be laborers.

But when they go home to refresh themselves on the old traditions and all they like to read notices in the papers describing them as New Yorkers—and their attitude toward those who did stay back amid the old scenes and customs to work as mechanics, farmers, ditch-diggers and what-all is one of hearty condescension. They regard them as quaint, back-country people, and when they return to New York with their old traditions refreshed they get together with other emigres in their little unassimilated colonies of Buckeyes, Badgers, Sooners, Suckers and all, to laugh as they describe the quaint dialect and quaint little interests of the simple yokels at home.

They Always Give First Loyalty To Home State
You ought to hear an unassimilated Nebraskan describe the conversation he had with Zeke, the taxi driver, in his old home town the time he went back to bury his uncle. Zeke wasn't much account, over. He and the unassimilated Nebraskan went to help for a while, but Zeke was a common type who stuck around home, building corncribs, working on the paving gang, sometimes tending gas stations and one thing or another until, finally, he got his back. Good old Zeke is a common type who stuck around home, building corncribs, working on the paving gang, sometimes tending gas stations and one thing or another until, finally, he got his back. Topplers Lead in Falcons' League

Take Three Games in Opening Matches at Hendy Alleys

Menasha—The Topplers jumped into the lead in the opening of the Polish Falcons Bowling league Sunday afternoon at the Hendy alleys when they took three games from the favored Hefty Dollies. The Knock Knocks, defending champions, dropped two games to the Badgers and the Kewpies took two games from the Zippers.

J. Ostrowski was the only Falcon keeper to crack a 500 series in the opening round. He had games of 239, 196 and 186. His 239 was good for high single game honors also.

Other high games included G. Talarzyk, 201; M. Gumler 215; B. Nodolny 203; U. Kaminski 222, and L. Slonski 200.

The Topplers rolled the high series and high game, 2,767 and 967. Although they lost three games the Hefty Dollies rolled the second high series, 2,694. The Kewpies rolled the second high game, 909.

Results last night:
Topplers (3) 967 905 895
Hefty Dollies (0) 821 877 873
Badgers (2) 818 812 832
Knock Knocks (1) 782 817 824
Kewpies (2) 829 909 815

Thursday Classes for Adults are Postponed

Neenah—Classes taught in the Neenah Evening school on Monday and Thursday nights will not be held this Thursday evening because of the annual Wisconsin Education association convention to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Milwaukee, according to Carl Christensen, director.

The social problems course conducted through the cooperation of the Wisconsin university extension department will start tonight. Christensen pointed out that college credit may be secured providing a certain amount of outstanding work is done, but persons don't have to take the course for the credits and will be excused from outside work.

It Is Said--

That few of the spectators at the Neenah-Lawrence Frosh booster football game here Saturday realized that a family feud was taking place on the gridiron when Robert Stiffled, a member of the Neenah High school and eleven faced his elder brother, Alvin, a gridman on the Lawrence Frosh eleven. The yearlings scored a 6 to 0 victory over the Rockets.

NEW MENASHA GRANDSTAND NEARING COMPLETION

Menasha—The new cement grandstand at the city baseball park, a section of which is shown above, is nearing completion. Work on the stadium was started last spring as a WPA project. The grandstand consists of three sections of which the east and center sections are shown above. Underneath the east section the shower rooms, concession room, dressing rooms and similar rooms are being constructed. The opening in the front wall leads from the dugout back into the dressing room. Seats are being bolted down in the stadium section. Workmen also are pouring concrete for the sidewalks around the structure and the driveway to the gate. Work remaining to be done includes some painting, stucco finishing of the walls and erection of the screen in front of the grandstand. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Phone Company Is Ordered to End Handset Charges

Reduction in Appleton Would be $2,951, Commission Says

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission ordered the Wisconsin Telephone company today to discontinue its extra charge of 8 cents a month for handset telephone service effective with November bills. The commission estimated the order will save about $125,000 a year for 130,000 users of handset instruments.

Until 1935 the company charged 25 cents a month for this type of telephone but in that year the commission ordered a reduction to 8 cents and gave other companies the option of continuing on a 8 cent a month basis or a 25 cent charge for two years only.

The commission said the additional cost to the Wisconsin company of providing handset service is now only 18.5 cents a year above the cost of desk sets and that this amount is too small to warrant making an extra charge against the subscribers.

Want All Included Investigation Looking Toward Wiping Out the Additional Charge

Investigation looking toward wiping out the additional charge entirely was started last March and is next intended to include all other companies, about 50 of which furnish handset service. The commission said the Wisconsin company last May had 121,713 handsets in service as compared with 237,658 desk and wall sets and was adding about 1,700 a month.

The commission said that savings by communities based on the number of handsets in use at the end of 1937, would include the following:
Appleton, $2,951; Ashland, $587; Beaver Dam, $536; Beloit, $1,716; Chippewa Falls, $491; Eau Claire, $2,447; Fond du Lac, $2,283; Green Bay, $1,241; Janesville, $1,835; Kenosha, $2,589; Madison, $9,908; Manitowish, $1,678; Marinette, $791; Milwaukee, $48,851; Neenah-Menasha, $2,098; Oshkosh, $2,549; Racine, $4,890; Sheboygan, $2,457; South Milwaukee, $605; Stevens Point, $1,075; Superior, $1,768; Watertown, $636; Waukesha, $1,382.

Heilig Gives Talk on 'The Changing Times'

Menasha—Herb Heilig, director of the Appleton Vocational school, spoke on "The Changing Times" at the meeting of Lambda Tau Pi society at the First Congregational church Sunday evening. The speech was introduced by Herbert Hartung. More than 20 young people attended the meeting.

"Old people always feel that the young are out of step," the vocational school director declared and went on to point out that what happens today determines what will happen tomorrow.

He advised the young people that they must prepare today for the things that they wish to do in the future. As examples of preparation for the future by handicapped persons of only average ability, Mr. Heilig cited several personal acquaintances.

COUGHS DUE TO COLDS

To quickly relieve distress—rub nothing, warming Musterole on your chest, throat and back.

Musterole is NOT "just a salve." It's a "counter-irritant" containing good old-fashioned remedies for distress of colds—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor and other helpful ingredients.

That's why it gets such fine results—better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole penetrates the surface skin, stimulates, warms and soothes and quickly helps to relieve local congestion and pain. Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In 3 strengths: Regular, Children's (Mild) and Extra Strong. 40¢.

Donovan Honored By Dental Society

Neenah Man Elected Fellow of American Society of Dentists

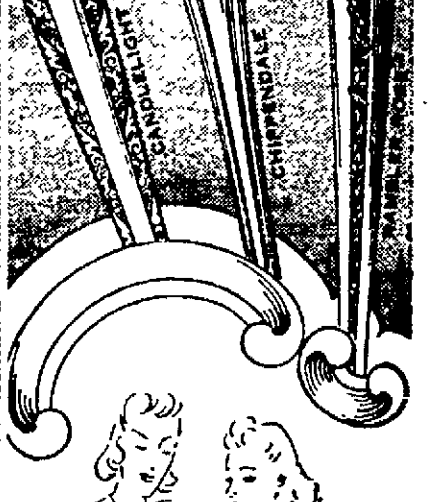

Neenah—Dr. J. M. Donovan, 122 Bond street, Neenah, one of the most prominent dentists of the Fox River valley, was elected a Fellow of the American Society of Dentists at the annual convocation of the organization in St. Louis on Oct. 23. Dr. Donovan was one of four Wisconsin dentists thus honored at this year's meeting. The other three are Dr. M. E. Johnston of Waukesha, Dr. J. P. Justin and Dr. H. F. Hahn of Milwaukee.

Dr. Donovan has been practicing in Neenah for more than twenty years, and for the last several years has edited the Wisconsin Dental Review, organ of Wisconsin dentists. He has contributed numerous articles on various phases of dentistry. There are about 25 Fellows of the American Society of Dentists in Wisconsin and only one or two others in the Fox River valley. Fellowship is conferred in recognition of meritorious achievement in dental science, art, education and literature. This society organizes to promote the ideals of the dental profession, to advance the standards and efficiency of dentistry and to stimulate graduate study and effort by dentists.

Radio Fiction of Attack by Martians Causes Panic Among Listeners; Inquiry Is Begun

fact rather than a fictional presentation. We feared that the classic H. G. Wells story, which has served as inspiration for so many moving pictures, radio serials and even comic strips, might appear too old-fashioned for modern consumption. "We can only suppose that the special nature of radio, which is often heard in fragments, or in parts disconnected from the whole, has led to this misunderstanding."

Last night's performance started off with a brief preface about it being fiction. The Mercury Theater of the Air program started out in routine fashion with announcements and a few bars of music. Suddenly—"we interrupt our program of dance music to bring you a special bulletin. Twenty minutes before eight, Prof. Farrell of the M. J. Jennings observatory, Chicago, Ill., reports several explosions of the incandescent gas occurring at regular intervals on the planet Mars."

This was the buildup for a dramatization that eventually had the Martians landing in meteor cars with the shock of an earthquake in the vicinity of Groves Mills (fictitious locale) New Jersey. A 30-second pause for studio music.

Then the octopus-like Martians using the device "heat rays" and, then, by telephone from the scene, the report of 40 persons dead "here." The Martians eventually succumbed to germs that we worldlings are immune to.

Columbia declared afterward it had no intention of misleading listeners and when it became evident that part of the audience had been disturbed by the performance, five announcements were made over the network later in the evening to reassure "lost" listeners.

Menasha—While other hunters were shooting their limit of ducks and other game Sunday, Louis Merkley, 128 E. Forester avenue, Neenah, went into a slightly higher classification as a hunter when he shot a 10-pound wild goose. He was hunting at the E. F. Dornbrook cottage on Lake Poygan.

War of the Worlds furnished the basis of the broadcast which spread alarm in the United States last night, said today it was "implicit" in the agreement for selling the radio rights that any broadcast would clearly "be fiction and not news."

The novelist added that he gave no permission whatever for alterations which might lead to the belief the broadcast material was real.

New York—(U)—Orson Wells, whose radio dramatization of H. G. Wells' "The War of the Worlds," caused nationwide bewilderment last night, did his first work in dramatics at an Illinois school.

Born in Kewanee, Wis., the son of an inventor, Wells was entered in the Progressive Todd school at Woodstock, Ill., when 11.

He showed a strong leaning towards the dramatic arts and was encouraged by the headmaster, Roger Hill. By the end of five years there—1931—he was writing, producing, directing and acting in school shows.

Returning to New York after a trip which he joined Katharine Cornell's company on her 35-week road tour in 1933.

Sometime later he created the radio character "The Shadow" he relinquished the role recently.

Cambridge, Mass.—(U)—The Harvard astronomical observatory, responding to a request for an opinion on the possibility of life on Mars, issued a statement today saying there was no evidence that the higher forms of life, as known on earth, exist on Mars.

The observatory's comment, following a radio broadcast describing a fictitious invasion of the earth by strange inhabitants of Mars, was that communication or transmission of projectiles from any planet was "material for fancy and fiction and not for science."

Seek More Members For Junior Choir At Neenah Church

Neenah—St. Margaret Mary junior choir will meet at 6:30 Tuesday evening for rehearsal and will complete plans for a covered dish party at 8 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 8. After the supper, games will be played and a short business session held.

Mrs. L. E. Lindquist, director of the junior choir, has announced that any interested young people are invited to the meeting Tuesday evening as a larger choir is desired. An entirely new program is being prepared. Enrolment will close with Tuesday evening's meeting.

Neenah Boys Brigade Will Convene Tonight

Neenah—All members of the Neenah Boys' Brigade, including those who just joined the organization as well as old members, are required to attend the regular meeting at 7 o'clock tonight. Registration for old members will be held and all members will be measured for sweaters which will be the Brigade uniforms. Following these activities, the boys will be dismissed in order to observe Halloween.

S. F. Shattuck and Leo Schubart, Brigade leaders on the dedication committee, will meet following the drills tonight and form plans for the public inspection of the new gymnasium which is to be completed this month.

Prevention of Fire Is Student Program Theme

Menasha—Fire prevention with the theme "Every day is Fire Prevention Day" was the subject of a program given by the fourth hour biology class at Menasha High school Friday under the direction of L. A. Wienbergen.

Students participating in the program were Edward Hill, John Baldauf, James Williams, Florence Smarzynski and Verl Franz. The students gave short talks on topics related to fires.

The topic subjects includes history of fire, causes of fire, guarding against fires, fire hazards in the home, fire prevention and fire insurance. The program was followed by class discussion.

Hollywood — Idol Chatter: Odd how difficult it is to remember what Sonja Henie looks like in street togs — I always think of her in a skating costume. Height of something or other: Francisca Gaal's declaration that she would like to have a baby but can't spare the time — she's made one picture in two years. Margaret Lindsay's taking a university extension course in economics. In-a-line-description of Martha Raye: Venus-hog-calling. Jimmy Gleason always gives the illusion of being in a hurry.

It's a study in graceful motion when Gail Patrick gets into a car. Odes to human nature: Deanne Durbin pausing outside a candy shop to make sure the seams in her stockings are straight. Talk alikes: Louise Campbell and Jean Arthur. Marie Dressler's colored servants have opened a swank undertaking parlor in Birmingham with the money she left them.

Hilarious moments: Carole Lombard, Jimmy Stewart and Director John Cromwell in conference about the correct way to fold a diaper. Shirley Temple is studying French. If I were a sculptor, Madeleine Carroll would be my choice for a perfect model. Victor McLaglen's pet hobby is his flower garden — the big sissy. You often hear the expression "On my honor" in Hollywood — but we've learned to take it with a grain of salt.

gushed visitor started out by displaying considerable interest. The studio guide showed him a New York street, built on the back lot. "Amazing!" said the Honorable Mr. Blank. Then he strolled around a corner, glimpsed at the back of the set, and realized for the first time that the buildings "they wouldn't last a minute in one of our twisters down home!" And after that nothing could pierce his boredom.

I've known a lot of daffy comics, but Chester Gunnels, playing in "Texas Ranger" for Republic, tops them all. Today, when I visited the set, he was driving the veteran cowpunchers to the verge of nervous breakdown by strolling about between scenes, pointing and snapping his empty revolver — a capital offense in the creed of any gun lover. They asked him point-blank to stop it, but Chester paid no attention. Finally Bill Patton, once a western star in his own right, asked to examine Chester's pistol. "Sure it isn't loaded?" he insisted and Mr. Gunnels assured him that it wasn't. Bill pointed the gun deliberately at the grinning comedian and slowly pulled the trigger. There was a terrific report — and a thud. Another cowboy, standing close behind Bill had simultaneously fired his own gun. But Chester didn't appreciate the gag. He had fainted dead away!

Lunched with Director Clarence Brown and asked his opinion about his current assignment. "It's a sure-fire hit," he answered, tersely. "In the opening scene Clark Gable kisses four girls four times each — a total of sixteen kisses. How can it miss?"

Tan Hunter, playing Shirley Temple's father in "The Little Princess" tells me not to worry about her future, and cites the following anecdote to prove his point. On the set yesterday, the company wardrobe woman was busy against a costly dress which is to be worn by Shirley in a later sequence. "What are you doing?" asked Her Royal Highness, and the woman explained that by scrapping the cloth she was making it look old and worn. "But that," said Shirley, "will ruin it. Why don't you buy an old dress? How much did this dress cost?" The wardrobe woman "guessed" about fifty dollars. "What a crazy business," Miss Temple muttered — and went back to her school work.

Mischa Auer, with a 1 o'clock call at the studio, was hurrying back from an overnight duck hunting trip to Bakerfield, approximately one hundred miles north of Hollywood when a speed cop stopped him. Although he had been doing seventy — and knew it — Mischa assumed his best injured innocence expression and naively inquired: "Was I going too fast?" "I didn't notice how fast you were going," the cop retorted grimly. "I'm arresting you for flying too low!"

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER
Europe from 1918 to 1938
XI—HITLER BUILDS HIS POWER
The story of Hitler's rise to power is like a dream (a nightmare, perhaps) but the facts show he is really there, really the ruler of Germany. A man who once seemed hardly more than a clown has risen to glory of a sort. What he does may decide whether millions of human beings will die in war.
Napoleon was a corporal in the French army before he rose to power. Mussolini was a corporal in the Italian army, and Hitler was a corporal in the German army. That may make the little office of corporal seem important, but there have been hundreds of thousands of corporals who have not been heard from.
There was something different about this German corporal who was 29 years of age when he laid down his weapons in 1918. He was a brooding man, and he brooded over Germany's defeat in the World War.
He was an Austrian by birth, but he had moved to Germany two years before the war broke out. He had joined the German army, had fought on the front lines, had been wounded and gassed.
A new Germany rose after the war, a German republic. It was a Germany suffering from wounds, suffering from hunger, suffering from war debts. Yet millions of Germans tried with all their hearts to make the republic a success.
Hitler cared little, if anything, about the republic. What he wanted was power. He wanted to build a German nation larger and stronger than had been known before.
Munich was the place where Hitler set to work. He talked before small groups, then before crowds.
In 1919 he helped form the German Workers' party, and in less than two years he had charge of it. In 1921 he changed the name to the National Socialist party. He was a bitter enemy of the real Socialist party, but believed the name would help him win followers.
In 1923 Hitler gave a talk in a Munich beer hall, and shouted that the next day he and his followers would march to Berlin. Along the way they expected to gather force, and when they reached the German capital they hoped to throw down the government and start a National Socialist rule.
It was a bold idea, but it didn't work. The marchers were stopped after they had gone a few miles. Hitler was arrested, and put on trial. His sentence was three years in prison.
Then men and women then holding office in Germany were for the most part kindly folk. They looked on Hitler as a joke, not a danger. After he had served eight months of his sentence, he was set free. It was supposed he had "learned his lesson."

Facsimile Ballot Notice of General Election

November 8th, 1938

State of Wisconsin }
County of Outagamie } ss

Office of County Clerk
October 20, 1938

SAMPLE OFFICIAL BALLOT

If you desire to vote for an entire party ticket for state, congressional, legislative and county offices, make a cross (X) or other mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the ballot. If you desire to vote for particular persons without regard to party, mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom you desire to vote, if it be there, or write any name that you wish to vote for in the proper place.

To the Electors of Outagamie County:

Notice is hereby given that a General election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts of the county of Outagamie, on the 8th day of November, 1938, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters.

6.22 (a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have indorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

(c) The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(f) After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

(g) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have the assistance of two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.

(h) The following is a facsimile of the official ballot:

New London Will Play Clintonville Eleven Wednesday

Game Will be Last for Six Regulars. One Reserve

New London—The New London High school football season will close Wednesday evening when the Stacymen will entertain the Clintonville Truckers under the lights in the last game of their Northeastern Wisconsin conference schedule. It will be the last game for six regulars and one reserve and there can be little doubt as to their feeling about winning their last game. It will be the only opportunity this season for the new-found strength of the Truckers, the Stacymen should manage the victory if they fight as they did against Shawano last Friday night.

The game appears in mid-week to cap the closing of school for the rest of the week for the annual teachers' convention at Milwaukee Thursday and Friday. The starting kickoff is scheduled for 8 o'clock. Seniors who will show for the last time are Louis "Ike" Poepke, often spoken of as New London's one-man football team; Stewart Hammerberg, his best side-kick; Jack Cole, dependable center; Paul Knapstein, guard; and Douglas Hanson, end. Junior Pahl will complete his service as a reserve back.

Richard Sweedy Dies After 2-Week Illness

New London—Richard E. Sweedy, 64, 916 Shiocton street, a saw filer at the American Plywood Corporation plant here the last 18 years, died at a hospital at 8:15 Sunday morning after a 2-week illness. He had been in poor health the last two years but continued at work until two weeks ago.

He was born at Manawa April 22, 1874, but lived at New London since his childhood. He marries Mrs. Edna McGowan in 1913 and is survived by the widow, one son Howard, New London, and six step-children, Hazel and John McGowan, Mrs. Carl Schoenrock, Mrs. Floyd Schoenrock and Mrs. Norton Palmer, New London, and Mrs. Emil Hines, Winneconne; three brothers, August, Oshkosh; Edward, New London; Charles, Weyauwega; two sisters, Mrs. James Brown, New London; Mrs. Otto Runkle, Oshkosh.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the New London Gospel Tabernacle preceded by a short service at the Cline and Learman Funeral home at 1:45. The Rev. A. N. Fleming will conduct services and burial will be in Floral Hill cemetery. The body will be at the funeral home.

Highway Commission To Open Bridge Bids

New London—Bids on the new bridge over the Wolf river at St. Pearl street will be opened at the office of the state highway commission at Madison at 10 o'clock Friday morning, Nov. 4, according to engineers who visited the city last week. The bridge will be constructed under a PWA program and work is to begin soon after the contracts are let.

All Saints Day Will Be Observed Tuesday

New London—All Saints day, on which all Catholics are obliged to attend mass the same as on Sundays, will be observed with special services at the Most Precious Blood church Tuesday. Masses will be held at 6 o'clock, 7:30 and 9 o'clock by the Rev. Raymond J. Fox, pastor, and the Rev. Anthony J. Baier, assistant.

Part-Time Farm Classes Planned

Registrations for New Course Will be Taken Wednesday

New London—New part-time agriculture classes for farm boys between the ages of 13 and 18 not attending high school will be organized at Washington High school this week, according to L. M. Warner, agriculture instructor. Mr. Warner said a survey shows about 70 boys in the New London area are eligible and many are interested in the classes.

Registrations will be taken at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 2, at the high school. Classes will be held between 2 and 4 o'clock each Wednesday afternoon until April 1. There will be no cost to the students and those who complete two years of the work satisfactorily will be presented with short-course certificates.

Study will be offered on such problems as milk testing, record keeping, feeding of dairy cattle, cattle diseases and selecting dairy cows and bulls. Practical mechanics will be offered in the Lincoln school shops and next year the subject of crop production, soils and poultry will be studied.

Robert Campbell Wins Salesmen's Auto Quiz

New London—Robert A. Campbell of the Monroe Motor company won first prize in an auto salesmen's zone quiz contest at Milwaukee last week. The contest consisted of oral questioning on the new automobiles. Six districts were represented. Campbell will enter a regional contest in the near future.

TREES TRANSPLANTED TO HIGH SCHOOL GROUNDS

New London—Two unique trees, commonly known as umbrella elms, took a prominent place on the Washington High school campus this week when a crew of city and project workers transplanted them from the lawn of Dr. R. L. Fitzgerald, 126 W. Quincy street, to the triangles at the entrance to the school grounds. The trees spread a thin layer of branches about five feet off the ground and may reach 40 feet in diameter. Dr. Fitzgerald had them removed because they were becoming too large for his lawn. Beautification of the school grounds has been continuing steadily, white auto guide posts and more evergreen trees having been set out at the rear of the school during the last few weeks. Senior Sodality Will Stage Young People's Party Friday

New London—A dance for the young people of the Most Precious Blood church will be held by the Senior Sodality at the parish hall Friday evening. The party will be especially timely during the vacation of high school students during the teachers' convention and the Halloween party season. A lunch will be served and a small charge will be asked to defray expenses. If successful, similar events may be held regularly during the winter season.

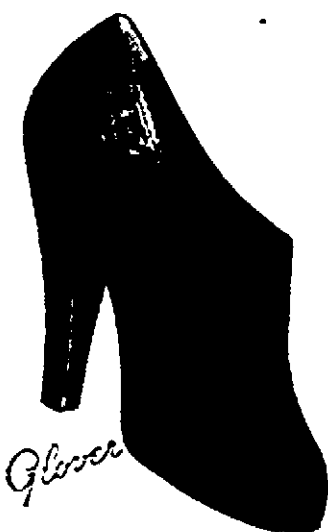

A review of outstanding women in Wisconsin will be given by Mrs. F. A. Jennings at the meeting of the Catholic Women's Study club at the parish hall Tuesday evening. Members of the newly organized club of the Lebanon parish will be guests. Miss Rose Kische and Mrs. Henry Monroe will describe state parks of Wisconsin and Mrs. Leonard Cline will present a book review by a selected Wisconsin author. Beauty spots of Wisconsin will be discussed at roll call and Wisconsin songs will be revived in community singing. Mrs. D. B. Egan will have the scripture reading.

The Ladies Aid society of the Emmanuel Lutheran church will meet Thursday afternoon at the church parlors. Mrs. Walter Spiering and Mrs. Walter Schoenrock are co-chairmen for the occasion. On the serving committee are Mrs. Theodore Sengstock, Mrs. Henry Spearbraker, Mrs. Otto Stern, Mrs. William Tank, Mrs. Leonard Traubauer, Mrs. Chris Tech, Mrs. Albert Tesch, Mrs. Fred Toepke, Mrs. Walter Toepke, Mrs. Kathryn Uecker, Mrs. Arthur Unger and Mrs. G. About 150 Attend Home Talent Event At McKinley School

Forest Junction—A home talent program of singing, speaking, instrumental music and tap dancing, sponsored by McKinley school at the town hall here Friday evening, was attended by about 150 persons. The program was in the form of a contest with contestants divided into three groups, the first group included pupils of outside schools; the second, the pupils of the sponsoring school; and the third group, adults. A public address system was used with speakers, singers and players performing before a microphone. Mrs. Marjorie Lindemuth, teacher of McKinley school, presided at the program.

Winners in the first group were Betty Schubring, Katherine School, Donna Marie Huebner, Orville and Lester Prellewitz. Winners in the second group were Arthur Wendt, Virginia Mae Otto, Caroline Krueger, Audrey Walker and Kenneth Dexheimer; and in the third group, Aspenna Zirbel, Mrs. Rueben Stanelle and Jerome School. The judges were Miss Faythe Fletcher, supervising teacher of Calumet county; Miss Kathryn Grenhagen, instructor of speech and social science, Chilton high school; and Ellis Evans, instructor of forensics and history, also of Chilton High school.

WOULDN'T HAVE PAID

Tyler, Tex. —(P)—A. M. Sutton, Tyler oil man, was watching the southbound traffic as he crossed a street. A northbound car swerved close to him and brushed his hip. Sutton, turning to look at the disappearing automobile, saw his wallet dangling from the door hinge. Although his trousers were tattered, he ran after the car and recovered the wallet.

Don't Marry The Man

By Jeanne Bowman

"I'll have it within half an hour after I call."

"I'll call first," threatened Kit-Smyth.

"You do and you'll be the sorriest man on this continent. If I can't reach this Gregory, personally, I know a New York publisher who can. And I don't think a boiled shirt front like Angus is going to like that, do you?"

"All right, all right," soothed Kit-Smyth. "Forget it. Forget the whole thing. Run your damned hospital, but I'm promising you this. You'll pay for every bit of damage done to that house."

"That's a bargain because there isn't going to be any damage. But just remember. Let one officer of the law step his foot on this place, or serve me with any papers and I'll make things so hot for the Gregorys they'll wish they'd never heard of you."

Kit-Smyth digested this in silence, then with a forced laugh he stretched out a conciliatory hand. And you won't ever mention the tenancy?"

Kathleen gave a sudden happy laugh. "So that's it," she said. "No, as long as you play ball. I won't mention our tenancy to the Gregorys."

Kit-Smyth departed and on the MacDonald side of the house a window closed softly.

"I told you, lad, she'd be needing no help," said the housekeeper.

MacDonald frowned. "Queer. I could have sworn she was Kathleen Gregory." He laughed. "She certainly hasn't any more use for him than I have, has she?"

Kathleen made an urchin's face at the closed MacDonald window and pranced back to the Gregory house in triumph.

"That will hold him," she told Bridget, who was just retiring.

"Oh, Cleo, there's a letter on the desk for you. I didn't want to take you."

Kathleen opened the letter, found an enclosure inside and opened that. She read the contents, then to Bridget's astonishment, threw herself on the bed and cried.

"Cleo . . . don't. I've never seen you cry. What is it dear, has someone hurt you?"

"Not me," the girl sobbed, "not exactly. They've been hurting other people. Oh I'm sick of being a Gregory."

Bridget opened the letter and read it. It was from Beatrice Gregory.

My dear Niece:

I told Angus he should have some responsible person accompanying you. You're acting like a child. The idea of worrying your father with demands like that although he wasn't having trouble enough with the mine.

He's gone to Canada for a rest. Before he left he said to tell you . . . I'll try to quote him, just as he spoke when he read your letter.

"Repair those cots and let these damned MacDonalds think they'd scared me into it. I won't put a penny in them if they all cave in."

And now my dear child, about the physician. After all we pay the regular wage scale. If the miners aren't thrifty enough to save their money and have a rainy day fund for illness, that is their fault.

Please let us hear no more about this. Your work is to obtain the right-of-way.

Lovingly,

Beatrice Gregory
